Od samostalnih izložbi u Galeriji savremene umetnosti Vojvodine u Novom Sadu i u Salonu Muzeja savremene umetnosti u Beogradu 1971, preko retrospektive u Muzeju savremene umetnosti Vojvodine u Novom Sadu 2012. nedavne grupne izložbe Dijalog u Beogradu i Sremskoj Mitrovici 2019, traje proces uključivanja dela Mire Brtki u kontekst srpske umetnosti druge polovine 20. i početka 21. veka, a da pri tome ne bude zapostavljeno i zaboravljeno njen prisustvo na italijanskoj umetničkoj sceni na kojoj je delovala u vreme boravka u Rimu od sredine šezdesetih godina.

Brtka je diplomirala na Akademiji za pozorište i film u Beogradu 1955, da bi posle jednogodišnjeg boravka u Pragu 1957. prešla u Rim 1963. gde završava studije slikarstva. Počinje da izlaže 1964. kada priređuje samostalnu izložbu u Galeriji Artiflex i učestvuje na izložbi Forme presenti (Brtka, Conte, Čubraković, Franchini, Takahashi) u Galeriji Scorpio 1965. Priključuje se grupi Illumination koju 1967. osniva japski umetnik Nobuya Abe (Nobuya Abe) (1913–1971) i kojoj su pripadali: Milena Čubraković, američka umetnica Marsha Hafif (Marcia Hafif) i italijanski slikari Paolo Patelli (Paolo Patelli) i Aldo Šmit (Aldo Schmid). Učestvuje na jedinoj izložbi grupe u Trentu u Galeriji L'Argentario 1967. Posle povratka u Srbiju posvećuje se intenzivnoj umetničkoj aktivnosti, osim na brojnim izložbama u zemlji priređuje samostalne izložbe u Bratislavi 2001, Pragu 2007, Budimpešti 2008.

From solo exhibitions at the Gallery of Contemporary Art of Vojvodina in Novi Sad and Salon of the Museum of Contemporary Art in Belgrade in 1971, through a retrospective at the Museum of Contemporary Art of Vojvodina in Novi Sad in 2012 and the recent group exhibition Dialogue in Belgrade and Sremska Mitrovica in 2019 – that is the length of the process of including the works of Mira Brtka into the context of Serbian art of the second half of the 20th and the beginning of the 21st century, without neglecting and forgetting her presence on the Italian art scene on which she operated during her stay in Rome from the mid-1960s onwards.

Brtka graduated from the Academy of Theater and Film in Belgrade in 1955. After a one-year stay in Prague in 1957, she moved to Rome in 1963, where she completed her painting studies. She started exhibiting in 1964 when she organized a solo exhibition at the Artiflex Gallery and participated in the exhibition called Forme presenti (Brtka, Conte, Čubraković, Franchini, Takahashi) at the Scorpio Gallery in 1965. She joined the Illumination group founded in 1967 by the Japanese artist Nobuya Abe (1913–1971) which also included: Milena Čubraković, American artist Marcia Hafif and Italian painters Paolo Patelli and Aldo Schmid. She participated in the group's only exhibition in Trento at the L'Argentario Gallery in 1967. After returning to Serbia, she dedicated herself to intensive artistic activity. In addition to numerous exhibitions in the country, she organized solo exhibitions in Bratislava in 2001, in Prague in 2007, in Budapest in 2008, in Istanbul in 2009. In Novi Sad, in Istanbul 2009. U Novom Sadu 2011. osniva Fondaciju Brtka Kresoja u kojoj je 2012. održana izložba Mira Brtka i grupa Illumination. Upravo vreme pripadništva ovoj grupi predstavlja početni, ali u problemskom smislu najznačajniji period u formiranju i razvoju slikarstva Brtke, kada nastaje prvi ciklus njenih ranih apstraktnih i monohromnih slika.

Osnovni srodnji kontekst ovom poimanju slikarstva obeležavaju na međunarodnoj umetničkoj sceni početkom šezdesetih godina prošlog veka izložbe Monochrome Malerei u Leverkuzenu 1960, Oltre l'informale u San Marinu 1963, Bianco Bianco u Rimu i Weis auf Weis u Bernu, obe 1964/66, na kojima se najavljuje i uvodi umetnička situacija "posle enformela" kao posledice duhovne klime koja nastupa nakon prethodne etape u znaku filozofije i literature egzistencijalizma, kao i u slikarstva apstraktog ekspressionizma i enformela. Tada počinje i razvija se raspoloženje savremenih konstruktivnih, spiritualnih i meditativnih vizuelnih i oblikovnih tendencija. Koliko su Brtki navedene izložbe mogle da budu direktno poznate, obe održane u Italiji verovatno jesu, danas nije moguće sa punom izvesnošću utvrditi, ali prepostavka da se njenо tadašnje slikarstvo stilski i idejno uklapa u navedenu atmosferu ukazuje se opravdanom.

2011, she founded the Brtka Kresoja Foundation, which hosted an exhibition called Mira Brtka and the Illumination group in 2012. The period of time in which she belonged to this group represents the initial, but also the most significant period in the formation and development of Brtka's painting, when the first series of her early abstract and monochrome paintings was created.

The basic context related to this notion of painting was marked on the international art scene in the early 1960s by exhibitions Monochrome Malerei in Leverkusen in 1960, Oltre l'informale in San Marino in 1963, Bianco Bianco in Rome and Weis auf Weis in Bern, both in 1964/66, at which the situation in arts "after informel" was announced and introduced as a consequence of the spiritual climate that had occurred after the previous stage marked by the philosophy and literature of existentialism, as well as that of the abstract expressionism in painting and informel. It was then that the mood of contemporary constructive, spiritual and meditative visual and formative tendencies began and developed. The extent to which the mentioned exhibitions could have been directly familiar to Brtka, and both held in Italy probably were, is not possible to determine with full certainty today, but the assumption that her painting at the time stylistically and ideologically fits into the mentioned atmosphere seems justified.

Under the name Illumination, which may denote the meaning of the terms "enlightenment" or "illumination", the renowned Japanese artist based in Rome, Nobuya Abe, gathered an international group of young artists, attracting them with ancient and modern teachings and understanding of life of the Far East. Abe was their spiritual mentor, role model, and "teacher" who wanted to bring the art of painting closer to them as a kind of visual haiku poetry. Hence the summarized forms and pure colors as basic elements of their artistic and symbolic statements about the necessity of the ideal of balance between thought and emotional factors. Unlike other groups that operated in Italy at about the same time under the auspices of the international New Tendencies movement, such as Gruppo N and Gruppo T, adhering to the principle of collective work and using developed technologies, Illumination retained the individual authorship positions of its members, who stayed committed to the discipline of painting. The group ceased to exist in 1971 after the death of Abe, the return of Marsha Hafif to

Prva i jedina izložba grupe Illumination, održana 1967. godine u Trentu, u Galeriji L'Argentario (Galleria d'arte L'Argentario), pod nazivom Gruppo Illumination

Pod nazivom Illumination, koji može da podrazumeva značenja pojmova "prosvetljenje" i "obasjanje", ugledni japanski umetnik sa boravkom u Rimu Nobuja Abe okuplja internacionalnu grupu mladih umetnica i umetnika privlačeći ih drevnim i savremenim učenjima i životnim shvatanjima Dalekog Istoka. Abe je bio njihov duhovni mentor, uzor i "učitelj" koji je slikarstvo želio da im približi kao jednu vrstu vizuelne haiku poezije. Otuda sažete forme i čiste boje kao osnovnih elemenata njihovih likovnih i simboličkih izjava o neophodnosti idealra ravnoteže između misaonih i emotivnih faktora. Za razliku od drugih grupa koje su otprilike u isto vreme delovale u Italiji u okrilju međunarodnog pokreta Nove tendencije, kao što su Gruppo N i Gruppo T, pridržavajući se principa kolektivnog rada i koristeći se razvijenim tehnologijama, Illumination zadržava pojedinačne autorske pozicije svojih članova koji ostaju privrženi disciplini slikarstva. Grupa prestaje da postoji 1971. posle smrti Abea, povratka Marše Hafif u Sjedinjene Države i Brtke u Srbiju, ali iako kratkog trajanja predstavlja pojavu vrednog istorijskog mesta u vremenu i sredini svoga delovanja.

Slikarska produkcija Mire Brtke u vreme rimskog boravka započinje 1963. kombinovanim tehnikama na šperpločama u duhu pozognog enformela, da bi nedugo potom odstranjujući guste naslage materije prešla na monohromne dvodimenzionalne površine sređenih poteza, sa nagoveštajima the United States and Brtka to Serbia, but although short-lived, it represents the emergence of a valuable historical place in the time and environment of its activities.

Mira Brtka's painting production during her stay in Rome began in 1963 with combined techniques on plywood in the spirit of late informel, and shortly afterwards, by removing dense deposits of matter, she switched to monochrome two-dimensional surfaces of arranged strokes, with hints of oval shapes in the center of the painted field or total planes devoid of compositional centers.

ovalnih formi u središtu slikanog polja ili pak totalnih ploha lišenih kompozicionih centara. Jedno od amblematskih dela ovog perioda jeste slika Zamagljeno ogledalo (Lo specchio rugginoso), 1964, sa asocijativnom temom i predmetnim motivom, za kojom slede serije crteža olovkama u boji, pastela i flomastera na hartiji Bez naziva (Senza titolo) iiii Konstrukcije (Costruzione) između 1965-1970, što ukazuje na njihovu doslednu i potpuno apstraktну strukturu. U 1966. nastaju prve bele slike Bez naziva uljem na platnu, kao daleke anticipacije ciklusa belih slika akrilicom nastalih posle dve hiljadite godine. Na izložbi grupe Illumination u Trentu 1967. Brtka prikazuje slike u kojima u linearne kompozicione ritmove uvodi boju u čistim i prostranim formama koja dominira u seriji kolaža nastalih 1970. godine. Oblikovni principi ovih kolaža, kao i slika uljem na platnu serija Blizanci (Twins), 1970. i Situacije (Situation), 1971, simetričnih prostornih i kolorističkih rešenja, raznobojnih površina, savijenih umesto pravolinijskih kontura, što za razliku od stroge neokonstruktivističke geometrije ovo slikarstvo uvodi u stilsko područje "organske apstrakcije". Posredi je jedno od središnjih kvalitetnih i problemskih poglavlja u ukupnom slikarskom opusu umetnice, započetom i nastalom u kratkotrajnoj podsticajnoj atmosferi ove male umetničke zajednice okupljene oko Abea, ali sa trajnim posledicama u razumevanju i pri oblikovanju različitih medija u njenoj kasnijej umetničkoj produkciji.

Danas završen i podvrgnut istorijskoj obradi i valorizaciji, ukupni doprinos Mire Brtke, a posebno njen rano slikarstvo predstavlja složen i izazovan interpretativni zadatak, tim pre jer za adekvatno sa sledavanje njegove geneze valja imati u vidu jedan konkretni kulturni kontekst kao što je pojava grupe Illumination na umetničkoj sceni Rima poznih šezdesetih godina prošlog veka. Na temeljima zasnovanim u tom kontekstu i razvijajući se potom samostalno i sve više u sklopu savremene srpske umetnosti, Brtka je izgradila višemedijski opus koji iako podeđen po zasebnim disciplinama (kao što su slikarstvo, kolaž, skulptura, objekti, instalacije, moda,igrani i animirani film i politički aktivizam) ujedno je objedinjen u neodvojivu celinu samim time što nastaje kao konačni bilans jedne jedinstvene ličnosti u toku njenog plodnog i uzbudljivog života.

One of her emblematic works of this period is the painting called Blurred Mirror (Lo specchio rugginoso), 1964, with an associative theme and subject motif, followed by a series of drawings in colored pencils, pastels and felt-tip pens on paper Untitled (Senza titolo) or Constructions (Costruzione) between 1965-1970, which indicates their consistent and completely abstract structure. In 1966, her first white paintings, Untitled (oil on canvas) were created, as distant anticipations of the cycle of white acrylic paintings created after 2000. At the Illumination group exhibition in Trento in 1967, Brtka presented paintings in which she introduced color into linear compositional rhythms in pure and spacious forms, which dominates the series of collages created in 1970. Design principles of these collages, as well as oil paintings from the series Twins (1970) and Situation (1971), with symmetrical spatial and coloristic solutions, colorful surfaces, bent instead of straight-line contours, which, in contrast to the strict neoconstructivist geometry, leads this art of painting into the stylistic realm of "organic abstraction". It is one of the central chapters regarding the quality and themes in the artist's overall painting opus, initiated and created in the short-lived stimulating atmosphere of this small artistic community gathered around Abe, but with lasting consequences in understanding and shaping various media in her later artistic production.

Completed and subjected to historical processing and valorization, the overall contribution of Mira Brtka, and especially her early art, is a complex and challenging interpretative task, particularly since, to adequately understand its genesis, one must keep in mind a specific cultural context such as the emergence of Illumination on the art scene in Rome in the late 1960s. On the foundations laid on that context and then by developing independently and increasingly within contemporary Serbian art, Brtka built a multimedia opus which, although divided into separate disciplines (such as painting, collage, sculpture, objects, installations, fashion, feature and animated film and political activism) is at the same time united into an inseparable whole by the very fact that it emerges as the final balance of a single person during her rich and exciting life.

MIRA BRTKA – UMETNICA KOJA JE VOLELA DA SE MENJA | MIRA BRTKA – AN ARTIST WHO LOVED TO CHANGE

BELE SLIKE

Posle završene Akademije za pozorišnu i filmsku umetnost - odsek filmske režije, u Beogradu 1955. Godine, Mira Brtka je 1959. otišla u Rim kako bi se usavršavala u radu na filmu. Tamo je, međutim, upisala Akademiju lepih umetnosti na kojoj je diplomirala 1963. i potom ostala da živi u tom gradu sve do 1970. kada se vratila u zemlju. Kratko vreme se posvetila umetnosti pozognog eniformela i istraživanju pojedinih neslikarskih materijala, pre svega mermerne paste, kao i evokativnim potencijalima reljefno oslikane površine. Već od 1964. nastaju, međutim, delikatno izvedeni radovi veoma svetlog kolorita na kojima se ponavljaju sitni, plošni oblici i evociraju nematerijalne vrednosti putem refleksija svetlosti ili u geometrizovanu mrežu uhvaćene atmosfere. Tada će nastati i prve Bele slike kao vrhunac svođenja izražajnih sredstava sve dok nisu ostali samo bela ploha i bela linija na njoj. Bele slike su izlagane 1965. na izložbi Forme presenti u galeriji Scorpio u Rimu, na kojoj su učestvovali i Antonio Frančini (Franchini Antonio), Bruno Conte (Conte Bruno) Šu Takahaši (Takahashi Shu) i Milena Čubraković. Autor izložbe bio je likovni kritičar Đuzepe Gat (Gatt Giuseppe) koji je kao ključno pitanje koje se postavlja izložbom istakao nastojanje umetnika da daju formu nečem tako nematerijalnom kao što je svetlost. U vezi sa tim napisao je da plastične lineane forme koncipirane u reljefu zarobljavaju svetlost i objektivizuju

WHITE PAINTINGS

After graduating from the Academy of Theatre and Film Art - Department of Film Directing in Belgrade in 1955, Mira Brtka went to Rome in 1959 in order to improve her work on the film. However, she enrolled in the Accademia di belle arti di Roma there, she graduated in 1963 and stayed living in that city until 1970, when she returned to the country. For a short period of time she dedicated herself to the late Art Informel and to the study of certain non-painting materials, mainly marble paste, as well as to the evocative potentials of the relief painted surface. But as early as in 1964, delicately performed works of very bright colour were created, in which small, flat forms were repeated and intangible values such as light reflections or the atmosphere captured in a geometrized network were evoked. The first White Paintings will appear at that time as the acme of the reduction of the means of expression, until only the white surface and the white line on it remain. The White Paintings were exhibited in 1965 at the Forme presenti exhibition in the Scorpio Gallery in Rome, in which Franchini Antonio, Conte Bruno, Takahashi Shu and Milena Čubraković also took part. The author of the exhibition was the art critic Gatt Giuseppe who pointed out the effort of the artists to give form to something as intangible as light as a key question posed by the exhibition. In this regard, he wrote that plastic linear forms designed in relief capture light and objectify it so that the painting becomes "an object of light or, rather a light-object".

Ta rana dela Mire Brtke nastala su u krugu prijatelja koji su nekoliko godina sarađivali ili čak i radili zajedno u ateljeu japanskog umetnika Nobuya Abea u Rimu. Pojedini od njih će dve godine kasnije, 1967, formirati i grupu Iluminacion i zajedno izlagati na izložbi u Trentu. Nobuya Abe, koji je u to vreme živeo u Italiji i bio neformalni vođa grupe, sam se bavio nekom vrstom organske apstrakcije. Smatrao je da se istraživanje relacija između površine, svetlosti, boje i prostora na slikarskom platnu mora oslanjati kako na savremena istraživanja tako i na filozofske ideje o duhovnom usavršavanju u smislu probuđene svesti koja isijava svetlost oko sebe. Svoj umetnički kredo najbolje je formalisao u katalogu izložbe u Trentu kada je napisao da za savremene umetnike boja ne treba više da oponaša prirodu već treba da bude sama svetlost – svetlost ljudskog duha odvojena od ostatka prirode. U tom smislu je i pojam illumination u nazivu grupe vezivao i uz iluminaciju kao oslikavanje ili oživljavanje srednjovekovnih rukopisnih

These early works by Mira Brtka were created in the circle of friends who collaborated or even worked together for several years in the studio of the Japanese artist Nobuya Abe in Rome. Two years later, in 1967, some of them formed the first group Illumination and exhibited together at an exhibition in Trento. Nobuya Abe, who lived in Italy at that time and was the informal leader of the group, was engaged in some kind of organic abstraction. He believed that the study of the relationship between surface, light, colour and space on the canvas must rely on both modern research and philosophical ideas of spiritual perfection in terms of the awakened consciousness that radiates light around. His artistic credo was best formulated in the exhibition catalogue of Trento when he wrote that for contemporary artists, colour should no longer imitate nature, but should be light itself - the light of the human spirit separated from the rest of nature. In that sense, the term illumination in the group name was connected with illumination as a painting or revival of medieval manuscripts and with enlightenment as a person's inner illumination.

Mira Brtka's White Paintings created in that intellectual and artistic environment bring the greatest possible rigour to the concept in her painting at the time. She used a canvas surface coated with a thin layer of white paint and relief, parallel, also white lines drawn on it with marble paste. The lines were perfectly correct because they were not drawn freehand, but using a specially constructed stylus with a funnel through which the paste was applied with the help of a template. There were no brush-strokes in the paintings, there was no texture or randomness, but there was still discrete dynamics created by the arrangement of lines and the relationship between the smoothly painted surface, the relief line and the shadow it cast on the canvas, which depended on the degree of illumination and the observer movements. The surface of the canvas is thus transformed into a void in which three-dimensional lines build relief lattice structures as a trace of a certain desire or event. As the lines never intersect, do not close and do not build closed shapes, it was not about the representation of the objective world but about the will to create a new reality on the canvas, complete and open to change at the same time. It is certain that it was not easy to create a painting with such limited resources as a white line on a white surface, and that such precise work required a certain preparation and then great concentration and complete dedication.

knjiga i uz prosvetljenje kao čovekovo unutrašnje obasjavanje.

Bele slike Mire Brtki nastale u tom intelektualnom i umetničkom okruženju donose najveću moguću strogost koncepta u njeno tadašnje slikarstvo. Korištala je površinu platna premazanu tankim slojem bele boje i na njoj mermernom pastom povučene reljefne, paralelne, isto tako bele linije. Linije su bile savršeno pravilne jer nisu povučene slobodnom rukom nego pomoću posebno konstruisane pisaljke sa levkom preko kojeg je pasta aplicirana uz pomoć šablona. Na slikama nije bilo poteca četkom, nije bilo teksture ni slučajnosti ali je ipak postojala diskretna dinamika koju je stvarao kako raspored linija tako i odnos između glatko oslikane površine, reljefne linije i senke koju je ona bacala na platno a koja je zavisila od stepena osvetljenosti i kretanja posmatrača. Ploha platna je na taj način preobražena u prazninu na kojoj trodimenzionalne linije grade reljefne rešetkaste strukture kao trag određenog htenja ili događaja. Kako se linije nikada ne ukrštaju, ne zatvaraju ine grade zatvorene oblike, nije bilo reči o reprezentaciji objektivnog sveta nego o volji da se na platnu stvori nova realnost, istovremeno i celovita i otvorena za promenu. Sigurno je da nije bilo lako stvoriti sliku sa tako ograničenim sredstvima kao što je bela linija na beloj plohi i da je tako precizan rad tražio izvesnu pripremu a zatim veliku koncentraciju i potpunu posvećenost. Ali upravo u krajnjoj proćišćenosti vizuelnog iskaza bila je i suština tog koncepta u kom se polazilo od pretpostavke da je umetnost potrebno oslobođiti svega naučenog, svih prethodnih znanja, skinuti već iskorišćene i prezivele kulturološke slojeve koje nameću sredina ili istorija umetnosti, da bi se vratilo na same izvore i započelo nešto sasvim novo. Bele slike Mire Brtki iz 60-ih godina nazvane su Konstrukcijama i označene rimskim brojevima koji su se odnosili na redosled nastanka.

Krajnja svedenost sredstava i jedva vidljiv pokret koji je još uvek bio daleko od ideja kinetičke umetnosti, povezuju te slike sa tada aktuelnim istraživanjima na međunarodnoj umetničkoj sceni koja se tiču opažanja, intuicije, meditacije ili umetnosti kao trancendencije pojavnog stvarnosti. But just in the ultimate purity of visual expression there was the essence of the concept, which was based on the assumption that art need to be free from all learned, all previous knowledge, one should remove already used and surviving cultural layers imposed by the environment or art history in order to return to sources themselves and start something completely new. Mira Brtka's White Paintings from the 1960s were called Construction and marked with Roman numerals that referred to the order of creation.

The ultimate reduction of means and the barely visible movement that was still far from the ideas of kinetic art, link these paintings with the then current research on the international art scene concerning perception, intuition, meditation or art as a transcendence of emergent reality. Their significance should first be sought in the experiences of heroic avant-garde from the beginning of the century, in the works of Malevich Kasimir who believed in the world as indivisible unity and the search for the fourth dimension as well as in painting by Mondrian Piet who gave up real world representation in order to present the idea of the stable cosmic principles which are behind the deceptive appearance. Both of them aspired to a značenje najpre bi trebalo tražiti u iskustvima herojskih avangardi sa početka veka, u delima Kazimira Maljeviča (Malevich Kasimir) koji je verovao u svet kao nedeljivo jedinstvo i potragu za četvrtom dimenzijom kao i u slikarstvu Pita Mondrijana (Mondrian Piet) koji je odustao od reprezentacije realnog sveta kako bi u slici prezentovao ideju o stabilnim kosmičkim principima koji stoje iza varljive pojavnosti. Obojica su težili nadindividualnoj, neekspresivnoj umetnosti koja otkriva metafizičke ili kosmičke aspekte postojanja. Ta idealistička vizija slikarstva je šezdesetih godina ponovo postala aktuelna pod uticajem estetike praznine i filozofskih ideja Dalekog istoka o potrebi za suočavanjem sa nesavršenošću, nedaćama i nelagodom svakodnevnog života putem pročišćenja i duhovne discipline. Te su ideje bile veoma uticajne među mlađim ljudima i delili su ih kako Mira Brtka tako i brojni drugi umetnici u Evropi i Americi. U Italiji se, na primer, takvoj umetnosti posvećuje Enrico Kastelani (Castellani Enrico), na kratko i Piero Manconi (Manzoni Piero), koji koriste nepravilnu reljefnu rešetku radi stvaranja slika na kojima se minimalnim razlikama tona ili debjine bojenog sloja stvara unutrašnji ritam slike kao svetlosnog objekta. Obojica su bili inspirisani delom Iva Klajna (Klein Yves) koji je zen budizam izučavao u Japanu i kasnije postao poznat instructor borilačkih veština u Francuskoj. Iako su tako organizovane slike na prvi pogled izgledale kao i pojedina dela umetnosti nazvane konstruktivizam, neoplastizam, objektivizam, razlikovalo ih je polaziše umetnika: dok su objektivističke umetničke struje bile usmerene na materijalističko istraživanje osnovnih elemenata slikarstva: plohe, boje, razmera platna, gustine namaza, teksture i slično, njihova je umetnost bila inspirisana potrebom za jednostavnošću, skromnošću i etičkim promišljanjem pre svega ličnih, egzistencijalnih pitanja u filozofiji i umetnosti. Slično su i članovi grupe Zero u Nemačkoj svoj rad definisali kao zonu tišine i otvaranje mogućnosti za novi početak. Posebno je Ginter Uker (Uecker Guenter) za blago reljefne monohromne površine kojima je istraživao potencijale svetlosti, prostora i vremena ili kretanja gledaoca da bi stvorio iluziju krajnje suptilnog pokreta na platnu, inspiraciju nalazio u dalekoistočnim kulturama i mističkom idealizmu. Za razliku od scientifičkog pristupa ili supra-individual, non-expressive art that reveals metaphysical or cosmic aspects of existence. This idealistic vision of painting became current again in the 1960s under the influence of the aesthetics of emptiness and philosophical ideas of the Far East about the need to deal with imperfections, adversities and the discomfort of everyday life through purification and spiritual discipline. These ideas were very influential among young people and were shared by Mira Brtka and many other artists in Europe and America. In Italy, for example, Castellani Enrico, even Manzoni Piero for a short time, dedicate himself to such art, using an irregular relief grid to create paintings in which minimal differences in the tone or thickness of the coloured layer create the inner rhythm of the image as light object. Both were inspired by the work of Klein Yves, who studied Zen Buddhism in Japan and later became a well-known martial arts instructor in France. Although paintings organized in such a way looked like certain works of art called constructivism, neoplasticism, objectivism at first glance, they were distinguished by the artist's starting point: while objectivist artistic currents were focused on materialistic research of basic elements of painting: surfaces, colours, canvas size, spread density, textures and the like, their art was inspired by the need for simplicity, modesty and ethical reflection primarily on personal, existential issues in philosophy and art. Similarly, members of the Zero group in Germany defined their work as a zone of silence and opening opportunities for a new beginning. Especially, Uecker Guenter, sought inspiration for his slightly relief monochrome surfaces with which he explored the potentials of light, space and time or the movement of the viewer to create the illusion of an extremely subtle movement on canvas in Far Eastern cultures and mystical idealism. Unlike the scientist approach or activist engagement, he, as well as the artists close to him, manifested resistance to egocentric consumer culture that neglects intuition and all-encompassing by giving up subjectivism and minimizing the means of expression. Although this was not the attitude of activist art that believed in the artist's obligation to participate actively in changes of social reality, this approach emerged as an expression of resistance to consumerism and the egocentrism of Western civilization, but confronted them with confidence in the spiritual potential of art.

The need for a purifying experience was shared by artists in America such as Agnes Martin, who dealt with grid aktivističkog angažmana, otpor prema egocentričnoj potrošačkoj kulturi koja zanemaruju intitivnost i svekoliku povezanost, on je, kao i njemu bliski umetnici, manifestovao odustajanjem od subjektivizma i svodenjem na minimum izražajnih sredstava. Mada to nije bio stav aktivističke umetnosti koja je verovala u obavezu umetnika da aktivno učestvuje u promenama društvene stvarnosti, i taj je pristup nastajao kao izraz otpora prema konzumerizmu potrošačkog društva i egocentrizmu zapadne civilizacije ali se sa njima suočavao povezenjem u spiritualni potencijal umetnosti.

Potrebu za pročišćujućim iskustvom delili su i umetnici u Americi kao Agnes Martin koja se bavila mrežastim strukturama koje zamagljuju površinu slike ili i Ed Reinhardt (Reinhardt Ad) sa geometrijskim oblicima koji se među sobom minimalno razlikuju u tonalitetu kako bi sugerisali nematerijalne vrednosti poput praznine beskrajnog prostora, ali i iskustva budnosti i meditacije ili odricanja od prirode i ega. Iako su ih pojedini kritičari smatrali minimalistima a drugi apstraktним ekspresionistima, oni su se i od jednog i od drugog pravca razlikovali upravo duhovnošću inspirisanom zen budizmom. Kao i brojni drugi umetnici u svetu težili su krajnjoj redukciji slike kako bi se posle ekspresivnosti enformela i gestualne apstrakcije, usmerenih na snažno ispoljavanje individualnosti i subjektivizma, umetnost vratila vrednostima tihovanja i meditacije ili idejama prema kojima i ono što je najmanje opažljivo sadrži u sebi sve što postoji. Odbijali su ne samo komercijalizaciju umetnosti nego i njene veze sa modernom tehnologijom i na tehnologiji zasnovanom progresu.

Kada je reč o ranim Belim slikama Mire Brtki trebalo bi, ipak, reći da u 60-im godinama nije bilo mnogo Belih slika kao i da njene Bele slike nisu uvek bile isključivo bele nego su ponekad bile tonirane ili su linije na njima neznatno naglašene diskretnom obojenošću. To ne umanjuje strogost ili čistoću koncepta u kom kretanje linearnih formacija unutar potencijalno beskrajne plošnine platna formira otvorene strukture kojima se na krajnje suptilan način saopštavaju određena misao, emocija i pogled na svet.

structures that blur the surface of the painting, or Ad Reinhardt with geometric shapes minimally different in tonality to suggest intangible values such as the emptiness of infinite space, but also experiences of wakefulness and meditation or renunciation of nature and ego. Although some critics considered them minimalists and others abstract expressionists, they differed from both directions precisely in their spirituality inspired by Zen Buddhism. Like many other artists in the world, they sought for the ultimate reduction of the painting so that, after the expressiveness of informal and gestural abstraction aimed at strong expression of individuality and subjectivism, art returned to the values of silence and meditation or ideas according to which even the least noticeable contains everything which exists. They rejected not only the commercialization of art but also its connection with modern technology and technology based on progress.

When it comes to Mira Brtka's early White Paintings, it should be said, however, that in the 60's there were not many White Paintings and that her white paintings were not always exclusively white but were sometimes tinted or the lines on them were slightly accentuated with dis-

Mira Brtka će po povratku u Srbiju 1970. godine promeniti način rada i posvetiće se umetnosti koja bi se mogla označiti kao organska apstrakcija ili umetnost oštih ivica. Nastajuće slike i kolaži živih boja bilo organskih bilo geometrizovanih oblika koji stvaraju utisak prostorne dvosmislenosti zbog protivrečnosti u položaju ivica oblika koji se udvajaju ili preklapaju stvarajući zamke za pogled, vizuelne zagonetke. Na njima se istražuje neizvesnost viđenja, nestalnost opažanja, zbuњujući odnosi punog i praznog, ravnog i voluminoznog, konkavnog i koveksnog. To posebno dolazi do izražaja na kolažima čiji su oblici isečeni iz živo obojenog papira jer oni imaju i izvesnu debljinu u odnosu na plohu na koju su postavljeni. Uklapanjem jedne vizuelne jedinice u drugu i dvosmislenošću njihovog položaja ti radovi podsećaju na vizuelne ideje Nobuya Abea o kome je umetnica i mnogo godina posle njegove smrti 1971. u Rimu, govorila sa velikim poštovanjem kao o svom učitelju.

Tokom sledećih nekoliko decenija Mira Brtka će se sa izuzetnim uspehom ogledati i u drugim umetničkim tehnikama: od tekstilnog kolaža, vezenih crete colouration. This does not diminish the rigour or the purity of the concept in which the movement of linear formations within the potentially infinite plane of the canvas forms open structures that communicate a certain thought, emotion and view of the world in an extremely subtle way.

Upon her return to Serbia in 1970, Mira Brtka will change the way she works and will dedicate herself to art that could be described as organic abstraction or art of "hard-edges". Images and collages of vivid colors of either organic or geometric shapes will be created, giving the impression of spatial ambiguity due to contradictions in the position of the edges of shapes that double or overlap, creating traps for sight, visual puzzles. They explore the uncertainty of seeing, the instability of perception, the confusing relations of full and empty, flat and voluminous, concave and convex. This is especially evident in collages whose shapes are cut from brightly coloured paper because they also have a certain thickness in relation to the surface on which they are placed. By fitting one visual unit into another and by the ambiguity of their position, these works are reminiscent of the visual ideas of Nobuya Abe, about whom the artist spoke with great respect as her teacher many years after his death in Rome in 1971.

Over the next few decades, Mira Brtka will be extremely successful in other artistic techniques: from textile collage, embroidered work, fashion design, to metal, welded sculpture in which she achieved exceptional results. And then, after 2000, she returns to White Paintings. They were similar to the early White Paintings in the general structure, which sought to dematerialize the painted surface with white canvas and parallel relief white lines as forces whose movement has a logic known only to itself. The paintings are now called White Shadows to highlight their most delicate or least material aspect. They were preceded, however, by a dozen works called Linea I, II, III... created between 1994 and 1996 as a reaction to the lush, one can even say neo-baroque art to which the artist indulged in the nineties in paintings and works, embroidered with rich tiny abstract forms and painted with vivid, almost psychedelic colour. The paintings called Linea were much more relaxed in relation to the strictness of the concept of White Paintings from the 60's, both because the line on them was drawn spontaneously and because the artist used discreet color or radova, modnog dizajna, do metalne, varene sculpture u kojoj je postigla izuzetne rezultate. A onda će se, posle 2000. godine, ponovo vratiti Belim slikama. One su bile slične ranim Belim slikama po generalnoj strukturi kojom se težilo dematerijalizaciji slikane površine belinom platna i paralelnim reljefnim belim linijama kao silnicama čije kretanje ima samo sebi znanu logiku. Slike su sada nazvane Bele senke kako bi se istakao njihov najdelikatniji ili najmanje materijalan aspekt. Prethodilo im je, međutim, desetak radova nazvanih Linea I, II, III... nastalih između 1994. i 1996. godine kao reakcija na bujnu, može se čak reći neobaroknu umetnost kojoj se umetnica prepustila devedesetih godina na slikama i radovima vezom bogatim sitnim apstraktним oblicima i obojenim živim, gotovo psihodeličnim koloritom. Slike nazvane Linea su u odnosu na strogost koncepta Belih slika iz 60-ih bile znatno opuštenije već i zato što je linija na njima povučena spontano kao i zato što je umetnica koristila diskretan kolorit ili sive tonove kao senke koje bi trebalo da sugerisu iluziju reljefa u plošni platna. Za razliku od trodimenzionalne linije i realnog plitkog reljefa koju je ona stvarala na površini, tu se radilo o sugestiji, o naslikanom efektu ili iluziji reljefnosti. Slike čak podsećaju na nabore tkanina, na zgužvane bele čaršave ili oblike objekata koji su nekako iščileli i od kojih su ostali samo neprepoznatljivi svetlotamni tragovi. Poigravanje svetlošću i senkom radi stvaranja utiska trodimenzionalnosti na ravnoj plohi slikarskog platna je na nekoliko asamblaža čak doslovno preobraženo u reljef. U tim slučajevima je na površinu platna fiksirano drugo platno natopljeno u razređenu belu boju i postavljeno tako da formira guste nabore. Na taj način izbegnut je svaki iluzionizam i slika je postala u reljefu izведен objekat. Ti radovi su, međutim, izazivali reminiscencije na nabore u slikarstvu zrelog baroka ili čak na religiozni zanos evociran uzvitlanošću draperije na figurama koje se energično kreću u beskrajnim nebeskim prostorima. Zato će se umetnica formirana na postulatima modernizma i njegove reduktivnosti kao i na spiritualnim poukama Nobuja Abe, vrlo brzo vratiti strogom konceptu belih slika iz 60-ih godina i filozofskim stavima o umetničkom prostoru kao reprezentaciji praznine koja je izvor, oblik i suština svega što postoji. Među slikama nastalim posle gray tones as shadows that should suggest the illusion of relief on the surface of the canvas. Unlike the three-dimensional line and the real shallow relief that it created on the surface, it was a suggestion, a painted effect or the illusion of relief. The paintings even resemble folds of fabric, of crumpled white sheets or shapes of objects that have somehow disappeared and of which only unrecognizable light-dark traces remain. Playing with light and shadow in order to create the impression of three-dimensionality on the flat surface of the painting canvas was literally transformed into a relief in several assemblages. In these cases, a second cloth soaked in diluted white paint is fixed to the surface of the canvas and placed so as to form dense folds. In that way, every illusionism was avoided and the painting became an object made in relief. These works, however, provoked reminiscences of the folds in the painting of the mature Baroque or even of the religious ecstasy evoked by the curvature of the drapery on the figures that move energetically in the endless celestial spaces. That is why the artist formed on the postulates of modernism and its reductivity, as well as on the spiritual teachings of Nobuya Abe, will soon return to the strict concept of White Paintings from the 60s and philosophical views on art space as a representation of emptiness which is the source, form and essence of everything that exists. However, among the paintings created after 2000, there are a few of them in gold or silver tones, because at that time the artist had the need to look for the roots of spirituality that is not the privilege of one culture or one civilization in her environment. Monochrome gold and silver paintings that repeat the structure of White Paintings remind us of golden backgrounds of Byzantine mosaics or silver fittings on icons that have the same meaning in these works as whiteness in Taoism, which is to evoke all-encompassing space as religious but also as abstract philosophical category.

After 2000, Mira Brtka will make a small series of "black paintings", in fact the lines cut by a professional machine in black acrylic that imitate the arrangement of lines in her White Paintings. If the production of White Paintings, which in that period included several dozen works, led to a certain saturation, their monotony literally solidifies in these black works as in its opposite, a kind of inverse copy in a reduced format. It is not a matter of elaborating a certain concept, but of an inversion in which not only white becomes black, but also what was raised on the surface becomes concave or even pierced and empdvehiljadite biće, međutim, i nekoliko onih izvedenih u zlatnom ili srebrnom tonu jer je umetnica u tom trenutku imala potrebu da korene duhovnosti koja nije privilegija jedne kulture ili jedne civilizacije potraži i u svom okruženju. Monohromne zlatne i srebrne slike koje ponavljaju strukturu belih slika podsećaju, naime, na zlatne pozadine vizantijskih mozaika ili srebrni okov na ikonama koji na tim delima imaju isti smisao kao i belina u taoizmu a to je da evociraju sveobuhvatan prostor kao religioznu ali i kao apstraktну filozofsku kategoriju.

Posle 2000- te godine Mira Brtka će uraditi i malu seriju "crnih slika", zapravo u crnom kliritu profesionalnom mašinom izrezanih linija koje oponašaju raspored linija na njenim Belim slikama. Ako je produkcija Belih slika koja je u tom periodu uključivala nekoliko destina radova dovela do izvesnog zasićenja, nijihova se monotonija doslovno skručuje u tim crnim radovima kao u svojoj suprotnosti, nekoj vrsti inverzne kopije u smanjenom formatu. Nije reč o razradi određenog koncepta nego o inverziji u kojoj ne samo da belo postaje crno nego i iono što je bilo uzdugnuto na površini postaje udubljeno ili čak probijeno i prazno kao što je i, ranije uz šablon povučena linija koja je ipak podrazumevala mogućnost greške, tu postala mašinski izveden rez. Ta bi se promena mogla shvatiti u kontekstu ideja Valtera Benjamina (Benjamin Walter) o sudbini slike u doba mehaničke reprodukcije pri čemu bi Bele slike predstavljale predložak koji se sa crnim kliritima ponavlja u potencijalno beskonačnim serijama. Ili se možda radi o labudovoј pesmi belih slika, nekoj vrsti grafičkog dizajna u kom su kapsulirane sve njihove osobine: igra punog i praznog, dubine i površine ili opažajna dvostrinslost kao tema koja je trajno fascinirala umetnicu. Zato nije neobično da je upravo jedan od radova u crnom kliritu poslužio kao logo za posthumno otvorenu Fondaciju Mire Brtke u Beogradu.

ty, just as the line previously drawn along the template, which implied the possibility of error, there became a machine-made cut. This change could be understood in the context of Benjamin Walter's ideas about the fate of the painting in the age of mechanical reproduction, with White Paintings representing a template that is repeated with black acrylic in potentially infinite series. Or maybe it's a swan song of white paintings, a kind of graphic design in which all their features are encapsulated: a game of full and empty, depth and surface, or perceptual ambiguity as a topic that permanently fascinated the artist. That is why it is not unusual that one of the works in black acrylic served as a logo for the posthumously opened Mira Brtka Foundation in Belgrade.

Radove sa vezom Mira Brtka je prvi put predstavila javnosti na izložbi nazvoj Usmerena imaginacija koju je organizovala Grozdana Šarčević u Gradskoj galeriji moderne umetnosti Novog Sada, u maju 1994. godine. U tekstu kataloga autorka je podsetila na brojne umetničke aktivnosti umetnice kao slikarke, skulptorce, filmskog stvaraoca, modnog dizajnera, koja tim novim ostvarenjima filozofiju svog bavljenja umetnošću podiže na viši nivo. Jer na izložbi su vezeni radovi bili predstavljeni u kontekstu aktivnosti Mire Brtki kao člana internacionalne grupe umetnika sa sedištem u Rimu, koji su se okupljali u različitom sastavu pa i pod različitim nazivima: Biro za preventivnu imaginaciju, Biro za sukcesivnu imaginaciju, Kritička snabdevanja i slično. Grupa se bavila kako umetnošću tako i sabiranjem umetničkih radova, znakova, slogana, načela i sličnih materijala koje je smeštala u svojevrsne bunkere, skloništa, sabirališta za slučajeve opasnosti. Takvo jedno sklonište (od osam koliko ih je u tom trenutku bilo u svetu), nalazilo se u kući Mire Brtki u Staroj Pazovi i nazvano je Biro za balkanizaciju umetnosti. U njemu je, uz Miru Brtku učestvovala i Grozdana Šarčević koja je i priredila izložbu u novosadskoj galeriji i ukazala na saradnju sa Biroom tako što je, uz vezene slike, izložila i sadržaj tzv. Crvenog metalnog kofera koji je donet ili tačnije rečeno "prošvercovan" u vreme sankcija 1994. godine iz Rima u Novi Sad. A iz kofera je izvađena i na izložbi predstavljena fotografска dokumentacija, plakati, publikacije i prelomi više brojeva časopisa koje je Grupa izdavala, kao i dijapozičivi radova iz 70-ih godina koji su se odnosili na umetnost mail arta u kojoj je učestvovalo oko 80 umetnika od kojih su neki danas veoma poznati.

Mira Brtka je prethodne 1993. zajedno sa članovima te grupe učestvovala na izložbi Depoziti znakova u Rimu. Danas nije moguće reći tačno šta je umetnica tada izlagala ali je izvesno da je u to vreme radila vezove sa rečima kao sos, međunarodnim znakom za pomoć, ili internacionalno prepoznatljivom reči sex, ili na šitu izvezena pojedinačna slova rimskog pisma da serifima. Da li su ta slova i brojevi izabrani slučajno ili imaju neki smisao, da li je taj smisao značajan samo za umetnicu ili ima šire značenje, da li

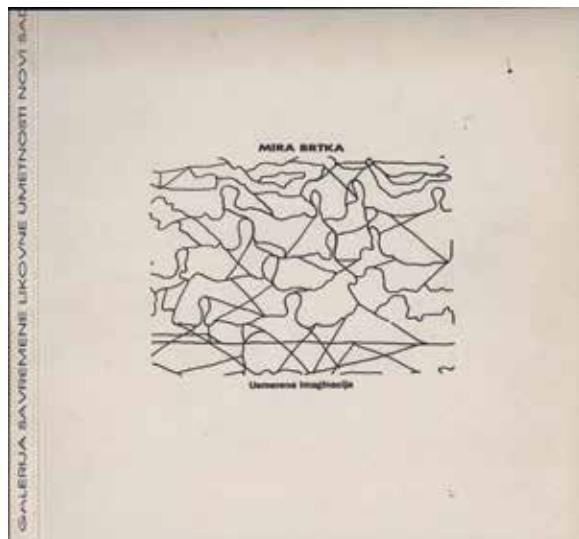

Mira Brtka's works with embroidery were presented to the public for the first time at an exhibition called Directed Imagination, organized by Grozdana Šarčević at the Contemporary Visual Arts Gallery in Novi Sad, in May 1994. In the text of the catalogue, the author reminded of the numerous artistic activities of the artist as a painter, sculptor, filmmaker, fashion designer, and raises the philosophy of her art to a higher level with these new achievements. The embroidered works presented at the exhibition were put in the context of the activities of Mira Brtka as a member of an international group of artists based in Rome, who gathered in different composition and under different names: Bureau for Preventive Imagination, Bureau for Successive Imagination, Critical Supplies and the like. The group was engaged in both art and collecting works of art, signs, slogans, principles and similar materials, which were placed in a kind of bunkers, shelters, gathering places for emergencies. One such shelter (out of eight in the world at that time) was located in the house of Mira Brtka in Stara Pazova and was called the Bureau for the Balkanization of Arts. Along with Mira Brtka, Grozdana Šarčević also participated in it. She organized an exhibition in the Novi Sad gallery and pointed out the cooperation with the Bureau by exhibiting, along with embroidered paintings, the content of the so-called A red metal suitcase that was brought or, more precisely, "smuggled" during the sanctions in 1994, from Rome to Novi Sad. The presented photographic documentation, posters, publications and covers of several issues of the magazine published by the Group, as well as slides of works from the 70's related to the mail art, in which about 80 artists participated (some are very famous today) were taken out of the suitcase and exhibited.

In the previous 1993, together with the members of that group, Mira Brtka participated in the exhibition Deposits of Signs in Rome. Today, it is not possible to say exactly what the artist was exhibiting at the time, but it is certain that at that time she made connections with words such as sauce, an international aid sign, or the internationally recognizable word sex, or on the shield embroidered individual letters of the Roman alphabet to the serifs. Today, it is hard to say whether these letters and numbers are chosen by chance or have some meaning, if that meaning is important only for the artist or has a broader meaning, if it is about the letters as the basic units of written language that build visual formations regardless of the semantic function of the word. At that time, she also made black self-portraits, embroidered je reč o slovima kao osnovnim jedinicama pisannog jezika kojima se grade vizuelne formaciјe nezavisno od semantičke funkcije reči, danas je teško reći. U to vreme radila je i crne autoportrete, vezene slike na kojima je, u centru platna, crnim okrilom naslikan samo neprepoznatljiv obris lica dok je pozadina trakasto izvezena raznobojnim koncem kao znakom pripadanja nekoj tradiciji. Skrivenost je na drugim autoportretima predstavljena maslinastim tonovima maskirnih uniformi na pozadini ili maskirnom šarom na silueti lica u crnom okruženju.

Obe izložbe, i ona nakojoj je Mira Brtka izlagala u Rimu 1993. i izložba Biroa za preventivnu imaginaciju u Novom Sadu 1994. bile su u tom trenutku mnogo više od običnih izložbi kakve se redovno održavaju u galerijskim prostorima. Obe su predstavljale kršenje sankcija u kulturi uvedenih rezolucijom UN 757, 30. maja 1992. godine, koje su uključivale ne samo prekid trgovine, redukciju diplomatskog osoblja i aktivnosti, zamrzavanje finansijskih transacija nego i obustavljanje svake naučne, tehničke i kulturne saradnje pa i zabranu protoka informacija između tadašnje skraćene Jugoslavije koju su činile Srbija i Crna Gora i sveta. Kako su se sankcije strogo primenjivale pokazuje podatak da je zbog učešća na šahovskom turniru u Herceg Novom, Bobi Fišer, svetski prvak u šahu, bio osuđen u Americi na kaznu zatvora i bio prinuđen da do kraja života živi na Islandu kao izbeglica u relativnom siromaštvu kako bi izbegao služenje kazne. Preko granice nije bilo dozvoljeno preneti ni par knjiga za ličnu upotrebu ili mesečnu dozu lekova za srce koji inače nisu mogli da se kupe u zemlji. To znači da je za italijanske umetnike saradnja sa Mirom Brtkom u tom trenutku predstavljala i realan rizik a ne samo manifestaciju građanske neposlušnosti. Prelaženje hermetičkih zatvorenih granica radi razmene umetničkog materijala nije, naime bio poželjan angažman "salonskih revolucionara" namenjen anonimnim izvršiocima, nego preuzimanje izvesnog ličnog rizika radi izražavanja stava neslaganja sa zabranama u kulturi.

Vezovi Mire Brtke su u to vreme još uvek bili relativno jednostavni, geometrijski, ili "konstruktivističko apstraktne provincijencije" kako kaže Grozdana Šarčević. Izazivali su asocijacije na umetnost sintetičkog kubizma ili ruskog konstruktivizma ali i na slikarstvo paintings in which, in the center of the canvas, only an unrecognizable outline of the face was painted in black acrylic, while the background was striped with multicolored thread as a sign of belonging to a tradition. In other self-portraits concealment is represented by olive tones of camouflage uniforms on the background or a camouflage pattern on the silhouette of a face in a black environment.

Katalog izložbe Mira Brtka – Usmerena imaginacija, ciklus radova punjenim vezom na platnu, 1976–1994, Galerija savremene likovne umetnosti Novi Sad, 1994. | Exhibition Catalogue, Mira Brtka – Directed imagination, cycle of embroidery works on canvas, 1976–1994, Contemporary Fine Arts Gallery Novi Sad, 1994

Both exhibitions, the one that Mira Brtka exhibited in Rome in 1993 and the exhibition of the Bureau for Preventive Imagination in Novi Sad in 1994, were at that time much more than ordinary exhibitions that are regularly held in galleries. Both were violations of cultural sanctions imposed by UN Resolution 757 on 30 May 1992, which included not only the cessation of trade, the reduction of diplomatic staff and activities, the freezing of financial transactions but also the suspension of all scientific, technical and cultural cooperation and the ban on flow of information between the then shortened Yugoslavia, which consisted of Serbia and Montenegro and the world. The example how the sanctions were strictly applied is shown by the fact that due to his participation in the chess tournament in Herceg Novi, Bobby Fischer, the world chess champion, was sentenced to imprisonment in America and was forced to live in Iceland as a refugee in a relative poverty in order to avoid serving a sentence. Not even a couple of books for personal use or a monthly dose same Mire Brke po njenom dolasku u zemlju kada je svoju apstrakciju zasnivala na ravno oslikanim organskim ili geometrizovanim oblicima. Ipak, i ti vezeni radovi bili su angažovani u socijalnom smislu reči jer je umetnica na platnu samo fiksirala crtež a zatim je izradu prepuštala veziljama, pazovačkim seljankama. Zbog zajedničkog rada vezeni radovi su predstavljali umetnički eksperiment u kom učestvuje više ljudi koji u njega unose sopstveni senzibilitet, iskustvo i specifično znanje a koji je imao i svoju ekonomsku dimenziju. Jer veziljski rad je bio plaćen i omogućavao je veziljama bar delimičnu ili bar privremenu ekonomsku podršku u jednom izuzetno teškom i u svakom smislu siromašnom vremenu.

Ako se za rane vezene radove Mire Brtke zbog galerijskog formata i centralne postavke motiva još uvek moglo reći da su to vezene slike, za one velikog formata to svakako više nije bilo tačno. Rani i pozni radovi razlikuju se, naime, po formatu ali i po tome što su raniji često bili okružneni belom ili crnom površinom od mermerne paste u koju je umešan pesak tako da stvara taktičnu fakturu. Taj je okvir, poput paspartua, služio da odvoji sliku koja je formatima, of heart medicines that could not be bought in the country were allowed to be transported across the border. This means that cooperation with Mira Brtka at that time was a real risk for Italian artists and not just a manifestation of civil disobedience. Crossing hermetically sealed borders for the purpose of exchanging artistic material was not, namely, the desirable engagement of "salon revolutionaries" intended for anonymous perpetrators, but taking a certain personal risk in order to express the attitude of disagreement with the prohibitions in culture.

Mira Brtka's embroideries were still relatively simple, geometric, or "constructivist abstract provenance" at that time, as Grozdana Šarčević says. They evoked associations with the art of synthetic Cubism or Russian Constructivism, but also with the painting of Mira Brtka herself upon her arrival in the country, when she based her abstraction on flat-painted organic or geometrized forms. However, these embroidered works were also engaging in the social sense of the word, because the artist only fixed the drawing on the canvas and then left the production to the embroiderers, the villagers from Pazova. Due to the joint work, the embroidered works were an artistic experiment in which several people participated, bringing their own sensibility, experience and specific knowledge into it, which also had its own economic dimension because embroidery work was paid and provided embroiderers with at least partial or temporary economic support in an extremely difficult and in every sense poor time.

If for Mira Brtka's early embroidered works, due to the gallery format and the central setting of the motif, it could still be said that they were embroidered paintings, it was certainly no longer true for large-format ones. Early and late works differ, namely, in format but also in that the earlier ones were often surrounded by a white or black surface of marble paste in which sand was mixed so as to create a tactile texture. This frame, like a passe-partout, served to separate the painting, which resembled works of modernism with its formats, combinations of shapes and colours, from the real space. Large formats, sometimes 2 or 2.5 x 1 meter, were, however, fixed only by wooden slats on the back, thus suggesting the possibility of endless expansion in space. They are reminiscent of paintings that the artist worked on in acrylic at the same time, and whose abstract content is shaped on a similar principle of small, vividly painted surfaces. For this cycle of paintings, Sava Stepanov will say he works with the artist who: "In an environment of disturbed value criteria, due to the global crisis caused by historical, political, systemic and economic changes, she as a painter seeks to encourage the observer authentically, to empower kombinacijama oblika i boja podsećala na dela modernizma, od realnog prostora. Veliki formati, ponekad 2 ili 2,5 x 1 metar bili su, međutim, učvršćeni samo drvenim letvicama na poleđini, sugerijući tako mogućnost beskrajnog širenja u prostoru. Podsećaju na slike koje je umetnica istovremeno radila u akriliku a čija je apstraktna sadržina oblikovana na sličnom principu sitnih, živo obojenih površina. Za taj ciklus slika Sava Stepanov će reći da sa njim umetnica koja radi: "u ambijentu poremećenih vrednosnih kriterijuma, usled globane krize izazvane istorijskim, političkim, sistemskim i ekonomskim pretumbacijama, nastoji da autentično slikarski obodri posmatrača, da ga duhovno osnaži u uverenju da je moguće prevazići tegobni osećaj bezizlaznosti u završnim decenijama nesrećnog prošlog veka." Ako je za opis tih slika ključna reč bila obodriti ona će u još većoj meri važiti za radove sa vezom velikog formata na kojima je kolorit još intenzivniji i provokativniji. Tu su podjednako uključeni crvena, plava, žuta, ljubičasta, narandžasta i zelena kao boje bliske tradiciji slovenskih naroda u kojoj postoji kontinuirana težnja za neočekivanim kolorističkim sazvučjima. U izboru tog kolorita odlučujući ulogu imale su, međutim, vezilje jer su radovi nastajali tako što je umetnica davana crtež na platnu i materijal za rad a vezilje su zatim samostalno birale konac koji će koristiti i same organizovale kolorističke odnose.

Saradjnjom sa pazovačkim veziljama Mira Brtka je veziljski rad izvela iz anonimnosti kućnog okruženja, prilagodila ga današnjim umetničkim kriterijumima i preobrazila u delo visoke umetnosti poput konceptualnog umetnika Aligiero Boetiјa (Botti Alighiero) koji je angažovao avganistske vezilje za izradu mapa velikog formata na kojim je svaka zemlja predstavljena u bojama svoje zastave. Ipak postoje i temeljne razlike. Boeti je bio konceptualni umetnik ponosan na to što osim ideje (i nešto organizacije) nije imao nikakve druge zasluge za izvedena dela. Vezovi Mire Brtke proističu, međutim, iz njene sopstvene umetnosti, iz trajnih interesovanja i "prirodnog" granja njenog opusa. Jer i "šarene" slike ispunjene brojnim, inezivno obojenim površinama i slično organizovani vezovi velikog formata, podsećali su na kolaže koja je Mira Brtka radila sa malim komadima ručno bojenih tkanina različitih oblika, fiksiranih samo na jenoj strani i složenih poput riblje krljušti po celoj površini him spiritually in the belief that it is possible to overcome the painful feeling of hopelessness in the final decades of the miserable last century." If the key word for the description of these images was to encourage, it will be even more valid for large-format embroidery works in which the color is even more intense and provocative. Red, blue, yellow, purple, orange and green are equally included as colours close to the tradition of the Slavic people in which there is a continuous striving for unexpected coloristic harmony. However, embroiderers played a decisive role in the choice of that colour, because the works were created by the artist giving a drawing on canvas and material for work, and the embroiderers then independently chose the thread to use and organized the colour relations themselves.

Collaborating with the embroiderers from Pazova, Mira Brtka took the embroidery work out of the anonymity of the home environment, adapted it to today's artistic criteria and transformed it into a work of high art such as conceptual artist Botti Alighiero who hired Afghan embroiderers to make large-format maps on which each country is represented in the colours of its flag. However, there are fundamental differences. Boeti was a conceptual artist proud of the fact that apart from the idea (and some organization) he had no other merits for the performed works. Mira Brtka's embroidery, however, arises from her own art, from her enduring interests and the "natural" branching of her opus. Because the "colourful" paintings filled with numerous, intensely painted surfaces and similarly organized large-format emplatna. Na sličnom principu radila je i skulpture, trodimenzionalne bokaste tvorevine čija je površina prekrivena obojenim parčićima tekstila. Neke od tih skulptura ukazuju da su zapravo nastale od uramljenih tekstilnih kolaža čija je površina mestimično "bubrla" dodavanjem slojeva, nepravilno se napinjala i sa prednje i sa zadnje strane, sve dok nije u potpunosti postala trodimenzionalni predmet koji može samostalno da stoji u prostoru. Angažovanje saradnika u izradi vezova Mire Brtke pre se zato može razumeti kao odgovor na otuđenje koje donosi savremeni život ili kao izraz potrebe za uspostavljanjem nove ravnoteže između umetnosti i nepostednog okruženja, nego kao insistiranje na razdvajajuću ideju od njene realizacije. Veliki formati izvedeni u tehnici punjenog, mašinskog veza povezuju, naime, na prvi pogled udaljene svetove narodne i visoke umetnosti, školovanog i iskustvom oblikovanog ukusa, tradicije i savremenosti, umetnika i sveta sa kojim živi u susedstvu, ukazujući istovremeno na neiscrpne mogućnosti tehnike veza za koju se činilo da je osuđena da nestane.

A kad je reč o samim vezovima velikog formata, radi se o radovima čija je površina bez ostatka, bez praznog mesta, ispunjena sitnim nepravilnim površinama intenzivnog kolorita koje se ulivaju jedna u drugu. Na njima zbijeni redovi punjenog veza, odnosi boja i njihovi međusobni uticaji transformišu izvezenu tkaninu u živo obojeno, potencijalno beskrajno, polje. Raznobojna i titrava tekstura takve površine isključuje hijerarhijsku organizaciju prizora i prostornu orientaciju u smislu razlike između daljine i blizine, gore i dole, i sugerišu prostiranje i izvan ivica izvezenog platna. Iako su vezovi ponekad zamišljeni kao pejzaži, kolorit na njima nije takav da bi oponašao boje iz prirode nego su boje proizvoljne, onakve kakve bi odredio slučaj ili ukus vezilje. Pored toga, kako se u postavci odustalo od isključivo horizontalnog predstavljanja, apstraktne prizori na njima ukazuju, pre svega, na mentalne predele, na akumulirana vizuelna iskustva i na duhovne pejzaže. Izloženi zajedno na odgovarajući način, imaju moć da poput srednjevekovnih tapiserija oblikuju ambijent u kom se nalaze i da u potpunosti apsorbuju posmatrača. U tom slučaju generišu intenzivno vizuelno iskustvo i predstavljaju krajnje autentičan doprinos Mire Brtke i srpskoj i evropskoj umetnosti.

broderies were reminiscent of collages made by Mira Brtka with small pieces of hand-dyed fabrics of various shapes, fixed only on one side and arranged like fish scales all over the surface of the canvas. She used a similar principle for sculptures, three-dimensional side works whose surface is covered with coloured pieces of textile. Some of these sculptures indicate that they were actually made of framed textile collages whose surface "swelled" in places by adding layers, irregularly stretched from both the front and the back, until it became a three-dimensional object that can stand independently in space. The engagement of collaborators in making Mira Brtka's embroideries can therefore be understood as a response to the alienation brought by modern life or as an expression of the need to establish a new balance between art and the immediate environment, rather than insisting on separating the idea from its realization. Large formats performed in the technique of stuffed, machine embroidery connect, namely, at first glance distant worlds of folk and high art, educated and by experience shaped taste, tradition and modernity, the artist and the world with which she lives in the neighborhood, while pointing to the inexhaustible possibilities of embroidery which seemed doomed to disappear.

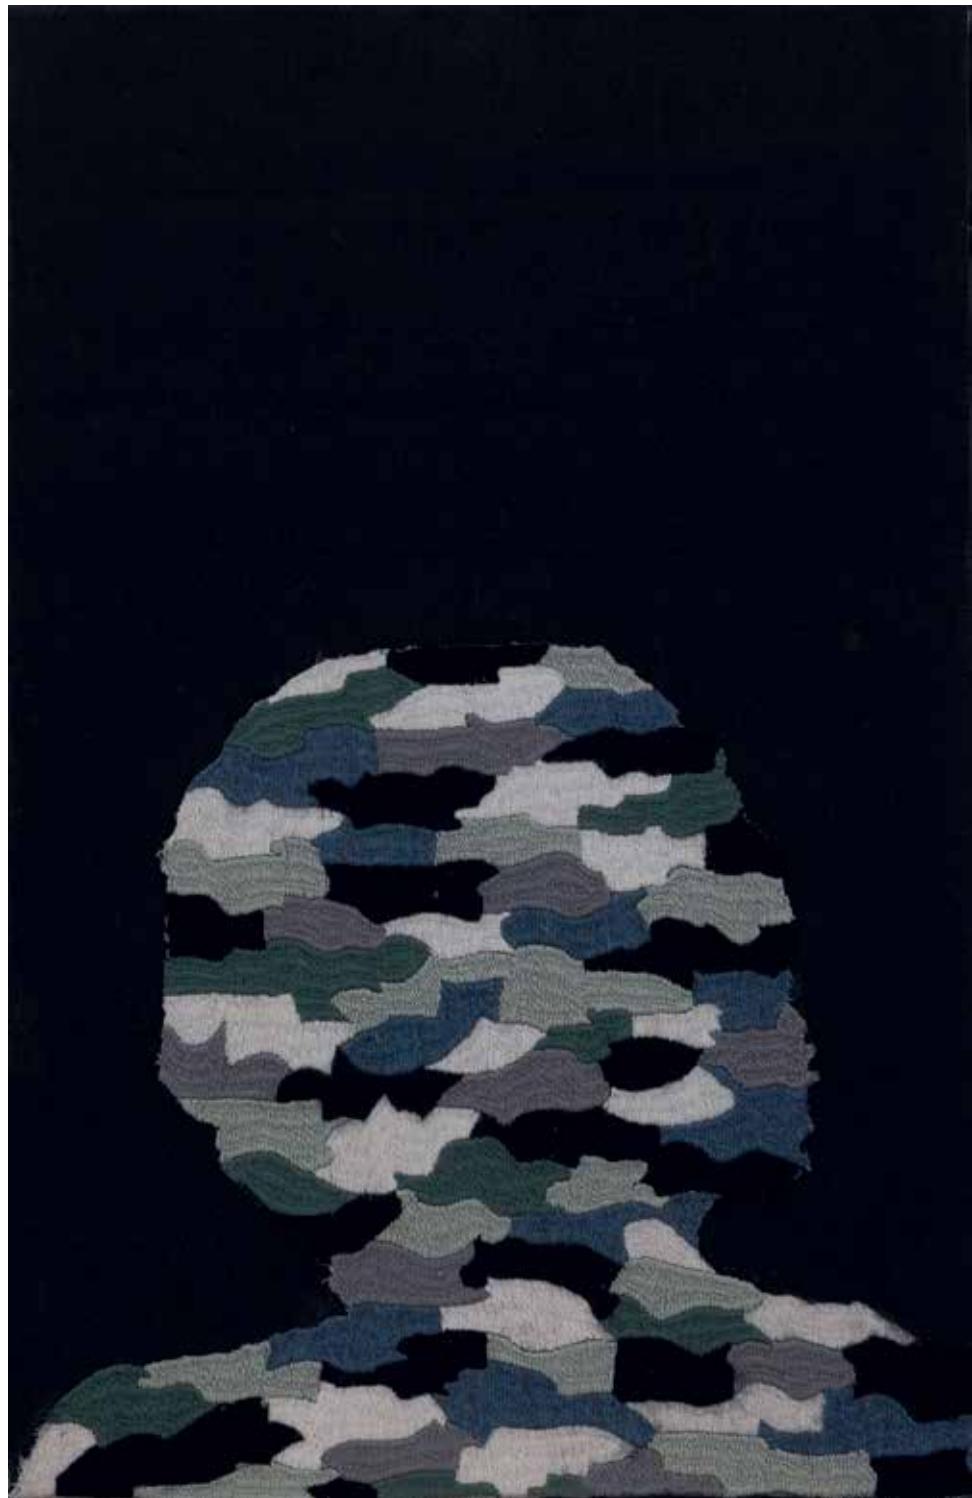

And when it comes to the large-format embroideries themselves, these are works whose surface is without residue, without empty space, filled with small irregular surfaces of intense colour that flow into each other. The rows of stuffed embroidery, relations between colours and their mutual influences transform the embroidered fabric into a vividly coloured, potentially endless field. The multicolored and vibrant texture of such a surface excludes the hierarchical organization of the scene and the spatial orientation in terms of the difference between distance and proximity, top and bottom, and suggests spreading beyond the edges of the embroidered canvas. Although the embroideries are sometimes conceived as landscapes, the colour on them is not such as to imitate the ones from nature, but the colours are arbitrary, as determined by the case or taste of the embroiderer. In addition, since exclusively horizontal representation was given up in the exhibition, the abstract scenes on them indicate, above all, mental landscapes, accumulated visual experiences and spiritual landscapes. Exposed together in an appropriate way, they have the power, like medieval tapestries, to shape the ambience in which they are located and to absorb the viewer completely. In that case, they generate an intense visual experience and represent an extremely authentic contribution of Mira Brtka to both Serbian and European art.

MODNI DIZAJN

Detalji sa vezenim motivima primenjivani su kao aplikacije i na haljinama koje je Mira Brtka počela da dizajnira nekako u slično vreme kada je počela da radi prve radove sa vezom. Tom vidu kreativnog izražavanja prethodio je rad na kostimima za film Krilate svinje Paola Pietranelija (Paolo Pietraneli) iz 1977. godine koji se bavio pobunom mladih ljudi protiv establišmenta i njihovim zahtevom za više političkih i seksualnih sloboda. I za njen modni dizajn izvan filma bio je značajan društveni kontekst stvoren pobunom mladih 1968. godine, njihova borba protiv autoriteta, protiv sve većih socijalnih razlika, protiv društvenog licemerja i slično. Mira Brtka se, naime, na modnu scenu uključuje u trenutku kada je još uvek bio snažan uticaj hipi pokreta kao i pokreta žena i marginalizovanih grupa za ravnopravnosć i slobodom kako u društvenom, tako i u porodičnom ali i modnom smislu reći. Tada slabi i značaj kreato-

FASHION DESIGN

Details with embroidered motifs were applied on dresses that Mira Brtka began to design at a similar time when she started doing her first embroidery work. This type of creative expression was preceded by work on costumes for a 1977 film Pigs Have Wings by Paolo Pietraneli, which dealt with the rebellion of young people against the establishment and their demand for more political and sexual freedoms. The social context created by the youth rebellion in 1968, their struggle against authority, against growing social differences, against social hypocrisy and the like was equally important for her fashion design outside of film. Namely, Mira Brtka joins the fashion scene at a time when there was still a strong influence of the hippie movement as well as the movement of women and marginalized groups for equality and freedom in the social, family and fashion sense of the word. At that time, the importance of designers as "fashion dictators" and expensive authorial models that emphasize the class division in society became weaker and the big names of the world fashion scene accepted to work in small series or to cooperate with ready-made houses. In the Serbian environment, fashion clothing in the seventies was not market-oriented and haute couture presented abroad or at fairs in Belgrade served only to show the possibilities and scope of that part of the economy, but not to announce or advertise collections that will be in market. This does not mean that fashion novelties were not followed on the street, especially among the young population, but they were obtained either by sewing clothes at home on following the pattern or by buying them in Trieste. Mira Brtka joined this scene laterally, from the side, and her dresses, whether she sewed them herself or with someone's help, were sold as dresses of a famous artist through Jugoexport and Centrotekstil and then, in small shops which appeared at the end of 80s. She sold them through intermediaries even in Rome, and it is known that they were worn there by Isabella Rossellini, Marina Vlad or Antonella Lualdi.

Mira Brtka's dresses had a square or round neckline, a hem above the chest, then they went straight down to the knees or a little lower where they were cut again to be continued with a folded or pleated part. By lengthening or shortening individual segments, numerous variations were obtained on the basis of one and the same ra kao "modnih diktatora" i skupih autorskih modela kojima se ističe klasna podela u društvu, te i velika imena svetske modne scene prihvataju da rade u manjim serijama ili da sarađuju sa konfekcijskim kućama. U srpskoj sredini modna konfekcija sedamdesetih godina nije bila tržišno orijentisana a visoka moda prezentovana u inostranstvu ili na sajmovima u Beogradu služila je samo da se pokažu mogućnosti i dometi tog dela privrede ali ne i zato da bi se najavile ili reklamirale kolekcije koje će biti u prodaji. To ne znači da modni noviteti nisu bili praćeni na ulici, posebno među mlađom populacijom, ali do njih se dolazilo ili tako što je odeća šivena kod kuće na osnovu šnita ili je kupovana u Trstu. Na takvu scenu Mira Brtka se ukljčila laterarno, sa strane, i svoje haljine, bilo da ih je šila sama ili iz nečiju pomoći, prodavala je kao haljine jedne poznate umetnice preko Jugoeksporta i Centrotekstila a zatim, i u malim trgovinskim radnjama kada se budu pojavile krajem 80-ih godina. Prodavala ih je preko posrednika i u Rimu te je poznato da su ih tamo nosile Izabela Rosselini (Rossellini Isabella) Marina Vladi (Vlady Marina) ili Antonela Lualdi (Lualdi Antonella).

Haljine Mire Brtke imale su četvrtast ili okrugao izrez oko vrata, psec iznad grudi, zatim su se ravno spuštale do kolena ili nešto niže gde su ponovo sečene da bi bile nastavljene faltanim ili nabranim delom. Producovanjem ili skraćivanjem pojedinih segmencut or model. If the lower part was separated, the dress functioned as a tunic; if it was shortened a little more it would be a blouse, if it had short sleeves it could be complemented by a long-sleeved turtleneck that would be worn underneath. It was decorated with haberdashery ribbons or appliquéd embroidered details with floral or geometric motifs. The artist's creativity, however, was mostly expressed on prom or evening dresses that were made of more expensive and higher quality materials and that allowed more creativity in the finishing phase with handmade ornaments. The dress was often made of a combination of fabrics of different colours, thicknesses and textures, and in some cases the already sewn dresses were hand-dyed, with each part absorbing the colour in a different way.

The cut of such a dress was based on the cut of a traditional undergarment - a shirt worn in almost all Slavic environments. It was not decorated to follow the body line, but was composed of flat parts of the fabric, which eliminated mistakes in cutting and ensured maximum utilization of the material. Relying on older cuts and modernizing a clothing tradition, made these models of dresses close to Laura Ashley, who designed romantic clothes inspired by the rural world of 19th century Britain at the same time. Her dresses are sewn from printed cotton fabric with a floral pattern and delicate colours, and then decorated with machine lace. Both represented a kind of response to structured fashion and very short ta dobijale su se brojne varijacije u osnovi jednog te istog kroja ili modela. Ako bi se odvojio donji deo, haljina je funkcionala kao tunika; ako bi se još malo skratila bila bi bluza, ako je imala kratke rukave mogla je biti dopunjena rolokom sa dugim rukavima koja bi se nosila ispod nje. Bila je ukrašena pozamanterijskim trakama ili apliciranim vezenim detaljima sa floralnim ili geometrijskim motivima. Kreativnost umetnice je, ipak, u najvećoj meri dolazi do izražaja na maturskim ili večernjim haljinama koje su rađene od skupljih i kvalitetnijih materijala i koje su dozvoljavale više kreativnosti u fazi dorade ručno rađenim ukrasima. Haljina je često bila izvedena kombinacijom tkanina različite boje, debljine i teksture a u pojedinim slučajevima već sašivene haljine su ručno bojene pri čemu je svaki deo na drugačiji način upijao boju.

Kroj takve haljine zasnivao se na kroju tradicionalne donje haljine – košulje kakva se nosila u gotovo svim slovenskim sredinama. Ona nije bila ukrajana da prati liniju tela nego je sastavljena od ravnih delova tkanine što je isključivalo greške pri krojenju i obezbeđivalo maksimalnu iskorišćenost materijala. Oslanjanje na starije krojeve i osavremenjavanje jedne tradicije odevanja, činili su te modele bliskim haljinama Laure Ešli (Laura Ashley) koja je u isto vreme dizajnirala romantičnu odeću inspirisanu ruralnim svetom Britanije 19 veka. Njene su haljine šivene od štampane pamučne tkanine cvetnog dezena i nežnog kolorita a zatim ukrašavane mašinskom čipkom. I jedne i druge predstavljale su svojevrsni odgovor na strukturiranu modu i sasvim kratke hajjine Meri Kvant namenjene mladim i vitkim ženama koja je već silazila sa scene. Zagovarale su svojevrsnu demokratizaciju mode koja ne uključuje samo vizuelno potiranje razlike između društvenih klasa nego i ukidanju razlike u odevanju između mlađih i starijih, vitkih i punijih žena, zaposlenih i domaćica. Bilo je bitno da hajina bude praktična, da omogućava potpunu slonbodu pokreta i da se lako prilagođava različitim potrebama moderne žene, njenim dnevnim, sportskim ili večernjim obavezama. Ipak, iako su haljine bile prepoznatljive i tražene, Miri Brtki, kao uostalom ni drugim samostalnim modnim kreatorima, u samoupravnom socijalističkom društvu nije bilo moguće da otvorи radnju sa svojim imenom, da stvari brend i ostvari znatniji komercijalni uspeh.

Mary Quant dresses intended for young and slender women which were already coming off the stage. They advocated a sort of democratization of fashion, which includes not only the visual elimination of the difference between social classes, but also the elimination of the difference in clothing between younger and older, slender and chubby women, employed and housewives. It was important for the dress to be practical, to allow complete freedom of movement and to adapt easily to the different needs of the modern woman, her daily, sports or evening obligations. However, in spite of the fact that the dresses were recognizable and sought after, Mira Brtka, like other independent fashion designers in the self-governing socialist society was not able to open a store with her name, create a brand and achieve significant commercial success.

UMETNOST MIRE BRTKE NAKON RIMSKOG PRELUDIJSKOG PERIODA | THE ART OF MIRA BRTKA AFTER THE ROMAN PRELUDE PERIOD

Tokovi slikarskog razvoja Mire Brtke mogu se okarakterisati paradoksalnom odrednicom diskontinuitet kontinuiranog jer se u tokovima umetnosti druge polovine dvadesetog veka njeni umetnosti pojavljivala poput reke ponornice: slikama iz svog rimskog perioda (od ranih šezdesetih do poznih sedamdesetih godina prošlog veka) ona u italijanskoj i jugoslovenskoj umetničkoj sceni učestvuje kao autoritativna učesnica novih post-informalističkih tendencija i zastupnica Arganove ideje projekta i Meninog stava "da umetnost ima pravo na zasebnost ne da bi se izdvojila - nego da bi bila model drugim znanjima i drugim praksama". Tadašnje Brtkino slikarstvo je zasnovano na slikanju monohromijske bele slike, svedene geometrije, hard edges slikarstva, neokonstruktivizma; na vizuelna istraživanja s nastojanjem da se utvrde objektivne psihofizičke osnove plastičkog fenomena i vizuelne percepcije, isključujući tako unapred svaku mogućnost uplitanja subjektivizma, individualizma i romantizma, čime su sve tradicionalne estetike opterećene. Nakon povratku iz Rima u Jugoslaviju, tokom osamdesetih godina, Mira Brtka potpuno izostaje sa umetničke scene i isključuje se iz tokova aktuelnih umetničkih zbivanja, da bi, tek na samom kraju te decenije, tačnije 1990. godine, iznenada priredila izložbu neoekspresionistička kolažnih ostvarenja u subjektivističkom, izrazito ekspresivnom i postmodernističkom maniru. Reagujući na duh i atmosferu jednog odista smutnog (pred)kriznog vremena Mira Brtka se približila Oli-

The artistic development of Mira Brtka can be characterized by a paradoxical term "discontinuity of the continuance", because in the art of the second half of the 20th century, her art appeared like an underground river: with the paintings from her Roman period (from the early 60's to the late 70's of the last century), she participated in the Italian and Yugoslav art scene as an authoritative participant of the new post-informalist tendencies and an advocate of Argan's idea of the project and Menina's attitude "that art has the right to individuality, not to stand out - but to be a model to other artists and their practices". Brtka's art at the time was based on creating a monochrome white painting, with reduced geometry, hard edges art, neoconstructivism; on visual research with an effort to determine the objective psychophysical bases of the plastic phenomenon and visual perception, thus excluding in advance any possibility of interference of subjectivism, individualism and romanticism, which burden all traditional aesthetics. After returning from Rome to Yugoslavia during the 1980s, Mira Brtka was completely absent from the art scene and excluded herself from the current artistic events. It was only at the very end of that decade, more precisely in 1990, that she suddenly organized an exhibition of neoexpressionist collage works in a subjectivist, extremely expressive and postmodernist manner. Reacting to the spirit and atmosphere of a truly troubled (pre)crisis time, Mira Brtka approached Oliva's concept of transavantgarde, according to which "the tissue of new art is imbued with a significant dose of subjectivism and sensitivity, which should not be understood only as an autobiographical vinom konceptu transavangarde po kojem je "tkivo nove umetnosti prožeto značajnom dozom subjektivizma i osećajnosti, koji ne treba shvatiti samo kao autobiografski i privatni sindrom - već kao usklađenost umetnosti i individualnih motiva pročišćenih upotrebom svesnog i kontrolisanog jezika".

Taj nenadani iskorak u postmodernističko slikarstvo i skulpturu (papier mâche) u Brtkinom opusu bio je jednokratan. Iako se radilo o reprezentativnim i autentičnim ostvarenjima, nakon pomenute novosadske izložbe, Mira Brtka se nije posvetila gestualno-ekspresivnom načinu izražavanja. Šta više, pokazalo se da je tokom istih tih osamdesetih godina održavala modernističku doslednost u čitavom korpusu slika geometrijske linearnosti i/ili tvrdih ivica - koje nije nikada (do sada) izlagala. Iz takvih pikturnalnih ostvarenja su proistekle i "vezene slike", sasvim specifične tvorevine u Mirinoj ali i čitavoj srpskoj savremenoj umetnosti. Naime, Brtka je na platnu linijom crtala/obeležavala pravilne forme koje su, potom, ispunjavane bojenim koncem. U početku je boju unosila sama umetnica ali je potom, u ciklusu "Usmerena imaginacija", izbor boja i način popunjavanja tih površina prepuštao staropazovačkim slovačkim tkaljama, njihovoj izvedbenoj veštini i njihovom likovnom senzibilitetu. Taj spoj umetničine moderne likovne misli i konceptualnog promišljanja umetnosti sa shematismom narodnog veza, rezultirao je sasvim neuobičajenim ostvarenjima koja su se logički razvila and private syndrome- but as harmonization of art and individual motives purified through the use of conscious and controlled language".

This sudden step into postmodernist art and sculpture (papier mâche) in Brtka's work was a one-off. Although these achievements were representative and authentic, after the mentioned Novi Sad exhibition, Mira Brtka did not dedicate herself to the gestural-expressive artistic work. Moreover, it turned out that during the 1980s she maintained that modernist consistency throughout the series of these paintings with geometric linearity and/or hard edges - which have never been exhibited (until now). "Embroidered paintings", quite specific for Mira's work, but also unique in the entire Serbian contemporary art, originated from such pictorial achievements. Namely, Brtka drew-marked shapes on the canvas with lines, which were then filled with colored thread. Initially, the colour was introduced by the artist herself, but later, in the series "Directed Imagination", she left the choice of colours and the way of filling these surfaces to the Slovak weavers from Stara Pazova, their performing skills and artistic sensibility. This combination of the modern artistic reflection of an artist and conceptual contemplation of art with the scheme of the folk embroidery resulted in completely unusual achievements that logically developed and transformed into autonomous works of art. In her early works of embroidery (from the 80's), certain pop-artistic hints appear (motifs with numbers, letrec signs, psychedelic portraits-silhouettes and self-portraits). They were later completely overcome by principles close to the constitution of an abstract painting organized into a solid plastic structure of distinctly pictorial effect.

Unfortunately, when it seemed that Mira Brtka started a new period of her art, a family tragedy halted her creative work in November 1996.<sup>1</sup> There was a new standstill, a new discontinuity situation.

1 At the beginning of the shooting of the film "Twilight over Belgrade", Mira's husband Dragan Kresoja and their son Miloš Stefan Kresoja died on November 6, 1996. The helicopter they were in crashed into the Danube during the night shooting. Dragan Kresoja (1946 - 1996) was a prominent film director. He was the author of extremely notable films, such as "The End of the War", "Oktoberfest", "Full Moon over Belgrade", "One more time", "The Original of the Forgery" and "Dark is the Night". Their son Miloš Stefan Kresoja (Rome 1972 - Belgrade 1996) was an extremely talented author, cameraman and director. As a young author, he distinguished himself with the documentaries "Disappearing" and "The Boy from Junakovac", and as a cinematographer with the film "Package Arrangement."

i transformisala u autonomna umetnička dela. U ranim vezenim radovima (iz 80-tih) pojavljuju se određene pop-artističke naznake (motivi sa brojevima, letičkim znacima, psihodeličnim portretima-siluetama i autoportretima), da bi potom potpuno prevladali principi bliski konstituciji apstraktnе slike organizovane u čvrstu plastičku strukturu izrazito pikturalnog dejstva.

Nažalost, kada se činilo da Mira Brtka započela jedan novi period svoje umetnosti, sudbinska porodična tragedija zaustavlja njen stvaralačko delovanje novembra 1996. godine<sup>1</sup> Nastaje novi zastoj, nova diskontinuitetna situacija.

Obnovu svojih umetničkih aktivnosti Mira Brtka započinje tek na samom početku novog XXI veka. Osnovna karakteristika poslednje faze stvaralaštva Mire Brtkе, započeta posle 2000-te godine, svakako je njena nenadana posvećenost skulpturi. Zapravo, ona se na našu umetničku scenu uključuje nekonvencionalnom izložbom skulptura u Zmaj Jovinoj ulici u Novom Sadu leta 2001. godine. Radi se o stilizovanim i intenzivno obojenim figurativnim predstavama, nastalih smislenim spajanjem metalnih fragmenata pronađenih na otpadu starog gvožđa. Ove figurativno koncipirane skulpture - potpuno su se, skoro mimikrijski, "uklopile" u atmosferu pešačke zone u centru Novog Sada. Tim svojim ranim skulptorskim radovima umetnica je refleksno reagovala na impulse stvarnosti: na socijalni ambijent nakon preživljenog iskustva epochalne krize iz predhodne decenije, nakon bombardovanja 1999-te i krupnih demokratskih promena iz oktobra 2000-te; na neizvesnost tada započinjanih tranzicijskih zbivanja koja su zavladala srpskim društvom.

<sup>1</sup> Snimajući prve kadrove filma "Suton nad Beogradom" 6. novembra 1996. godine poginuli su Mirin suprug Dragan Kresoja i njihov sin Miloš Stefan Kresoja. Helikopter u kom su se nalazili je prilikom noćnog snimanja pao u Dunav. Dragan Kresoja (1946 - 1996) je bio istaknuti filmski režiser. Autor je izuzetno zapaženih filmova kao što su Kraj rata, Oktoberfest, Pun mesec nad Beogradom, Još ovaj put, Original falsifikata i Tamna je noć. Sin Miloš Stefan Kresoja (Rim 1972 - Beograd 1996) je bio izuzetno talentovani autor, snimatelj i reditelj. Kao mladi autor se istakao dokumentarnim filmovima Nestajanje i Dečak iz Junakovca, a kao filmski snimatelj ostvarenjem Paket angažman..

Mira Brtka started the renewal of her artistic activities at the very beginning of the new XXI century. The main characteristic of the last phase of Mira Brtka's work, which began after the year 2000, was certainly her sudden dedication to sculpture. In fact, she joined our art scene with an unconventional exhibition of sculptures in Zmaj Jovina Street in Novi Sad in the summer of 2001. These were stylized and intensely coloured figurative representations, created by meaningful merging of metal fragments found on iron scrap. These figuratively conceived sculptures – completely "fit" into the atmosphere (to the extent of mimicry) of the pedestrian zone in the center of Novi Sad. With her early sculptural works, the artist reflexively reacted to the impulses of reality: to the social environment after surviving the epochal crisis of the previous decade, after the 1999 bombing and major democratic changes in October 2000; to the uncertainty of the transitional events that began at that time, prevailing in the Serbian society.

It turned out that the sculpture was not just a current commitment of Mira Brtka. After the "eloquent" post-modernist figuration, by the method of appropriation, Mira Brtka invented forms in which she insisted on the sculptural formal and language authenticity.<sup>2</sup> In the series "Red Sculpture" exhibited at the Zlatno oko Gal-

Pokazalo se da skulptura nije bila samo trenutno opredeljenje Mire Brtku. Posle "raspričane" post-modernističke figuracije, Mira Brtka, metodom apropijacije, iznalaže oblike u kojima insistira na primarnoj skulptorskoj formalnoj i jezičkoj autentičnosti.<sup>2</sup> U ciklusu „Crvena skulptura“ prikazanom u Galeriji Zlatno oko 2007. godine ona insistira na jasnoj definisanosti plastičkog oblika i njegove znakovne jednostavnosti, na diskretnom konstruktivizmu, na poštovanju materijala (metal) i utisku spomeničke monumentalnosti... Brtka pronalazi komade gvožđa preostale posle izrade određenih proizvoda i najčešće ih bez dodatne obrade, evo-cirajući dišanovski koncept i ready made postupak - proglašava skulpturom. U tim komadima umetnica suvereno afirmiše emancipovani skulptorski habitus – takvi oblici dejstvuju svojom vlastitom konstitucijom, deluju u prostoru ili ga obuhvataju kao „punovažnu“ plastičku činjenicu.

U karakteru ovih oblika jasne su reminiscencije na monumetalnost spomeničke skulpture kojom su obeležavane ili veličane ideološko-političke karakteristike jugoslovenske epohe komunizma. Eksplicitnost tih i takvih reminiscencija Brtka je potenciranl tako što je oko "stopa" ovih skulptura, na tlu, lery around 2007, she insisted on a clear definition of plastic form and its symbolic simplicity, on discreet constructivism, respect for materials (metal) and the impression left by of awe-inspiring monuments... Brtka found pieces of iron left after the production of certain products and usually without additional processing, evoking the Duchamp concept and the readymade procedure, she declared it a sculpture. In these art pieces, the artist affirmed the emancipated sculptural habitus - such forms act with their own constitution, in space or enclose it as a "valid" plastic fact.

The character of these monument sculptures contain clear reminiscences of the monumentality, which marked or glorified the ideological and political characteristics of the Yugoslav era of communism. Brtka emphasized the explicitness of these reminiscences by placing a simple metal frame on the ground at the "feet" of these sculptures. It was achieved by a thin, simple, rectangular or square metal molding, painted in intense red, emphasizing the ideological "colour" of the sculptures. At this exhibition, the artist also exhibited several differently conceived works, in which she consciously presented the symbols of the five-pointed star, the flag... Thus, Mira Brtka problematized the content of these sculptures: the form is the bearer of certain political connotations. The artist's intention was to criticize the imposition of ideological concepts and political systems, obligation to regime discipline, political totalitarianism ... It can be concluded that Brtka, with her authentic plastic thought, managed to generate an engaged attitude and a relation to the vital life phenomena. This attitude is ironic: these simplified forms only "imitate" the grandiosity of someone's earlier intentions.

After the early postmodernist and later readymade series, the plastic concept of Mira Brtka was directed towards the constructivist sculpture. In the beginning, they were mostly complex forms, which seemed like a reified dense spatial drawing in colour with many free line flows (wires). Then vertical constructions appeared, defined by linear, tubular and profile metal materials. When she reached in her sculpture the impression of explicit linearity of her white paintings created after 2000, Mira Brtka reached a specific constructivist sculptural attitude, completely unique in our recent art (the series Linear Sculpture, 2003-2007; City, 2009, Variable, 2011) In these sculptures, just like in the series of white paintings from postavljen jednostavni ram od metala. Radi se o tankoj, jednostavnoj, pravougaonoj ili kvadratnoj metalnoj lajsni koja je obojena intenzivnom crvenom bojom koja naglašava ideološku „obojenost“ skulptura. Istovremeno, na ovoj izložbi umetnica izlaže i nekoliko drugačije koncipiranih radova u kojima se svesno prezentuju simboli petokrake zvezde, zastave... Dakle, Mira Brtka ove svoje skulpture sadržinski problematizuje: forma je nosilac određenih političkih konotacija. Namera umetnice je da kritikuje nametanje ideoloških koncepata i političkih sistema, obaveznost na režimsku disciplinu, politički totalitarizam... Iz svega toga jasno proizilazi da Brtka autentičnom plastičkom mišlju, uspeva da iznedri jedan angažovan stav i odnos prema vitalnim životnim manifestacijama. Taj stav je ironijski: ovim pojednostavljenim oblicima samo se „imitira“ grandioznost nečijih ranijih namera.

Nakon ranih postmodernističkih i potonjih ready made ciklusa plastički koncept Mire Brtke se usmerava ka konstruktivističkoj skulpturi. U početku su to najčešće bile, kompleksne forme koje su delovalile poput reifikovanog gustog prostornog crteža u boji sa mnoštvom slobodnih linijskih tokova (žica), a zatim se pojavljuju vertikalne konstrukcije definisane od obojenih linearnih cevastih i profilnih metalnih materijala. Kada u svojoj skulpturi dosegne utisak eksplisitne linearnosti njenih belih slika nastalih posle 2000-te, Mira Brtka doseže do specifičnog konstruktivističkog skulptorskog stava, potpuno zasebnog u našoj novijoj umetnosti (Ciklus Linearna skulptura, 2003-2007; Grad, 2009, Varijabilno, 2011). U ovim skulpturama Mire Brtke, baš kao i u njenoj seriji belih slika iz istog perioda, postoji uvišena estetska nota koja ne remeti ontološki status skulpture a koja ovu umetnost čak integriše u najšire područje kulture. U okolnosti ma svakodnevliju ispunjenog brojnim manifestacijama neokapitalizma, filozofije profit-a, opšte medijalizacije i dehumanizacije, ova umetnost svojim vrednosnim karakteristikama deluje u "prostoru u kojem se emotivne inkompatibilnosti, društveni konflikti i pitanja statusa sukobljavaju na mnogo koncentrisaniji način nego što je to u svakodnevnoj komunikaciji".<sup>3</sup> Zapravo, svoje konstruktivistič-the same period, there is a sublime aesthetic note, which does not disturb the ontological status of the sculpture, integrating this art into the broadest field of culture. In the circumstances of everyday life filled with numerous manifestations of neocapitalism, the philosophy of profit, media and dehumanization, this art with its values operates in "a space in which emotional incompatibilities, social conflicts and status issues clash in a much more concentrated way than in everyday communication".<sup>3</sup> In fact, Mira Brtka confronts her constructivist works with destructive tendencies in numerous areas of human life of our time. In this way, her art "changes the level of a debate and introduces a paradigm shift within the debate on aesthetics:

aesthetics is no longer a science of beauty, but a comprehensive theory of visuality, a general theory of culture." (Aleš Erjavec)<sup>4</sup>

In Mira Brtka's artistic work after 2000, the return to the principles of modernism was especially interesting. It should be noted that, due to her absence from the art scene, she did not participate in the art renewal of ke tvorevine Mira Brtka konfrontira destrukcijskim tendencijama u brojnim oblastima življenja čoveka našeg vremena. Na taj način njena umetnost "menja nivo rasprave, odnosno unosi promenu paradigmе unutar rasprave o estetici: estetika više nije nauka o lepom, već sveobuhvatna teorija vizuelnosti, odnosno opšta teorija kulture. (Aleš Erjavec)<sup>4</sup>

U umetničkoj delatnosti Mire Brtkе posle 2000-te posebno je zanimljiv povratak principima modernizma. Treba napomenuti da ona, zbog pomenutog odsustva sa scene nije učestvovala u uspostavljanju novomodernističke obnove umetnosti i u procesu ustoličenja Klotzove "druge moderne" na vojvođanskoj, srpskoj i jugoslovenskoj umetničkoj sceni. Ipak, u njenoj umetnosti mogu se prepoznati osobenosti koje su umetnost na prekretnici vekova vodili "preko postmoderne do već potvrđenih rezultata druge moderne". Mira Brtka svojom neprikosnovenom umetničkom intuicijom shvata i oseća da je haotičnoj situaciji srpskog društva tokom devedesetih i tegobnom tranzicijskom procesu nakon 2000-te, odista potrebna modernistička paradigma kao inicijativa za ustanovljenje novih, drugaćijih i zdravijih odnosa. Brtkine slike iz dvehiljaditih se odriču postmodernističke subjektivističke raspojasanosti i ekspresionizma a njeno slikarstvo ponovo se zasniva na dejstvenosti likovnih elemenata kao strukturalne zasebnosti i picturalne vrednosti. Na samom početku tog novog stopeća Mira Brtka slika zamašan ciklus neogeometrijskih slika a kojima dominiraju široke površine plave boje (najčešće IKB ili tzv. visoko plavo), crne i bele (neoslikana belina platna). Ovu kombinaciju boja, kao i još nekoliko varijacija, umetnica je preuzela iz folklorne tradicije vojvođanskih Slovaka kojima i sama pripada, te je ove sklopove čistih bojenih polja smatrala identitetskim, autentično autobiografskim i svojim duboko personalnim tvorevinama.

Vođena takvim stavom Mira Brtka, tokom te prve decenije XXI stopeća, ponovo dolazi do minimalističkog i monohromijskog bele slike nastojeći da new modernism and in the initiation of Klotz's "other modernism" on the art scene of Vojvodina, Serbia and Yugoslavia. Nevertheless, in her art one can recognize the peculiarities that led art at the turn of the century "through the postmodern art to the already confirmed results of modern art". With her impeccable artistic intuition, Mira Brtka understood and felt that the chaotic situation of the Serbian society during the 1990s and the difficult transition process after 2000, really needed a modernist paradigm as an initiative to establish the new, different and healthier relations. Brtka's paintings from the 2000s renounced postmodern subjectivist exuberance and expressionism, and her art was again based on the effectiveness of artistic elements, such as structural uniqueness and pictorial value. At the very beginning of that new century, Mira Brtka painted an extensive series of neogeometric paintings, dominated by wide surfaces painted in blue (usually IKB or so-called high blue), black and white (unpainted white canvas). This combination of colors, as well as several other variations, the artist adopted from the folklore tradition of Vojvodina Slovaks to which she belonged herself, and considered these sets of pure coloured spaces as her identity, as authentically autobiographical, and as her deeply personal creations.

Guided by such attitude, Mira Brtka, during that first decade of the 21st century, again comes to a minimalist and monochromatic white image, trying to break the osećanje ephalne krize prelomi kroz vlastitu prizmu, da ponudi smirenu, neekspresivnu i meditativnu raspravu o karakteru i duhu sveta; konačno, da izdejstvuje sliku koja predstavlja agens duhovnog prevazilaženja tegobne krizne zbilje na razmeđi vekova i milenijuma. Očigledno je da se Brtka vratila konceptu bele slike sasamog početka svog rimskog slikarskog perioda. Novim ostvarenjima umetnica je nastojala da, u uslovima #novog doba" opšte medijalizacije umetnosti, reaffirmiše važnost estetskih i etičkih načela. Dakle, radi se o onim istim načelima iz šezdesetih godina prošlog veka, kojima je umetnica dospela do modernističke umetnosti „koja ima pravo na zasebnost – ne da bi se izdvojila, nego da bi svojim modelom bila primer drugim znanjima i drugim praksama" (F.Menna). Istovremeno, Mira Brtka se priključila onim akterima slikarstva koji su svesno nastojali da reaffirmiše sliku/slikarstvo, da sačuvaju njen humano značenje koje je u globalnoj "ikonosferi" potisnuto i izgubljeno u mnoštvu digitalnih i drugih medijski slika, u vremenu u kojem su prevladali sasvim drugačiji kriterijumi i dehumanizovani odnosi.

Pomenuti pročišćeni modernistički koncept slike Mire Brtke nije bez razloga oslonjen na ostvareња i stavove iz rimskog perioda. Ona, zapravo, feeling of epochal crisis through her own prism, to offer a calm, non-expressive and meditative discussion about the character and spirit of the world; finally, to create an image that represents an agent of spiritual overcoming of the painful crisis of reality at the crossroads of centuries and millennia. It is obvious that Brtka returned to the concept of white painting from the very beginning of her Roman painting period. With her new works, the artist tried to reaffirm the importance of aesthetic and ethical principles in the conditions of the "new age" of general medialization of art. Thus, these are the same principles from the 1960s, by which the artist reached modernist art "which has the right to stand apart - not to stand out, but to be a model for other knowledge and other practices." (F. Menna) At the same time, Mira Brtka joined those participants in the art of painting who consciously tried to reaffirm paintings / art of painting, to preserve its humane meaning that has been suppressed and lost in the global "iconosphere" in a multitude of digital and other media images, at a time in which completely different criteria and more dehumanized relations prevailed.

Previously mentioned purified modernist concept of painting by Mira Brtka is not without reason based on the achievements and attitudes from her Roman period. It, in fact, recognizes the coincidence of two time-different social environments: the 1960s were about post-cataclysmic renewal and post-war progress of the world; and at the beginning of the new century it was about prepoznaće podudarnost dva vremenski različita društvena ambijenata: šezdesetih se radilo o postkataklizmičnoj obnovi i posleratnom napretku sveta; a početkom novog veka je reč o delovanju nakon ratnih, katastrofičnih i fatalnih devedesetih. U oba slučaja je osnaženo uverenje da je moguće ustanoviti novo i bolje organizovano društvo. Mira Brtka je, kao autentični zagovornik Arganove teorije projekta u umetnosti, teorije koja podrazumeva proces i progres u kojem umetnik kao aktivni učesnik promene nudi estetski sistem kao mogući model uređenja društva i odnosa u njemu. Jer, kako je to još svojevremeno utvrdio Teodor Adorno u svojoj Teoriji estetike (1970), "autonomna umetnost može slomiti uspostavljenu stvarnost i negirati iskustvo konkretizacije te da je sposobna da razvije ideju autonomne umetnosti u okvirima koncepta estetske forme ili sposobnosti za unutrašnju organizaciju sebe same, kako bi se restrukturirali postojeći šabloni mišljenja i delanja".

Završni period umetnosti i životnog puta Mire Brtkе "poklopio" se sa početkom novog XXI stopeća. Tokom svojih bioloških sedamdesetih i osamdesetih godina, dakle u odista zrelom stvaralačkom dobu, ona je od 2000. do 2014 godine ostvarila izuzetno značajne domete. Taj završni umetnički crescendo je rezultirao sublimacijom njenih umetničkih stavova, sukcesivno ispoljavanih tokom čitavog opusa. Posle 2000-te godine u nekoliko slikarskih ciklusa Mira Brtka rekapitulira svoje dotadašnje stavove, ponovo preispituje svoje celokupno umetničko delovanje i zdušno učestvuje u procesu obnavljanja principa modernosti - insistirajući na delotvornosti slike/slikarstva i skulpture u doba liberalnog kapitalizma, globalne medijalizacije i primetne dehumanizacije društva. Takođe, u tim poznim godinama znenada je realizovala i nekoliko zasebnih skulptorskih ciklusa u širokom koncepcijском rasponu od kontrolisane konglomeracije ready made elemenata pa sve do elegantnih metalnih konstruktivističkih skulptura, te do skulptorskih i slikarskih objekata od klirita, tog posve ovovremenskog materijala. Tim svojim ostvarenjima Mira Brtka je, u vizuelnom i metaforičkom smislu, uspostavila i večnu refleksiju njenog istinsko traganje za smislom života i umetnosti.

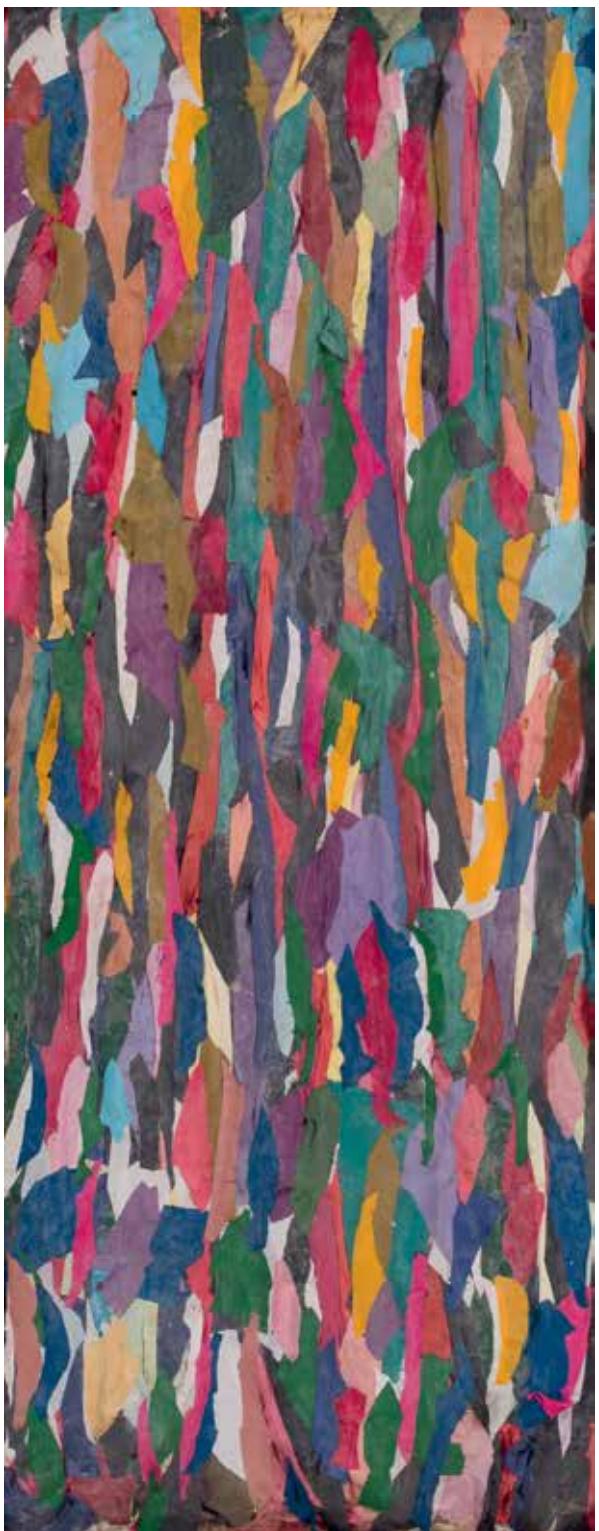

activities after the nineties, which were plagued by war, catastrophe and fatalities. In both cases, the belief that it is possible to establish a new and better organized society had been strengthened. Mira Brtka, as an authentic proponent of Argan's theory of project in art, a theory that implies a process and progress in which the artist, as an active participant in change, offers an aesthetic system as a possible model of society and relations within it. For, as Theodore Adorno once established in his Theory of Aesthetics (1970), "autonomous art can break established reality and negate the experience of concretization and be able to develop the idea of autonomous art within the concept of aesthetic form or ability to internally organise itself, in order to restructure existing patterns of thinking and acting".

The final period of art and life of Mira Brtka "coincided" with the beginning of the new 21st century. During her biological seventies and eighties, that is, in a truly mature creative age, she accomplished extremely significant achievements from 2000 to 2014. This final artistic crescendo resulted in the sublimation of her artistic attitudes, successively expressed throughout her opus. After 2000, in several painting series, Mira Brtka recapitulated her previous views, re-examined her entire artistic endeavors and art and wholeheartedly participated in the process of restoring the principles of modernity - insisting on the effectiveness of paintings/art of painting and sculpture in the age of liberal capitalism, global medialization and noticeable dehumanization of society. Also, in those late years, she suddenly created several separate sculptural series in a wide conceptual range from the controlled conglomeration of ready-made elements to elegant metal constructivist sculptures, and to sculptural and painting objects made of clirite, that completely modern material. With these accomplishments, Mira Brtka, in a visual and metaphorical sense, established an eternal reflection of her true search for the meaning of life and art.

AKTIVZAM | ACTIVISM

Sagledavanjem šireg društvenog konteksta nakon Drugog svetskog rata, uočava se znatno izmenjena intelektualna, materijalna, emocionalna, egzistencijalna i umetnička klima. Na intelektualno - stvaralačkom planu, pre svega u literaturi i vizuelnim umetnostima, poetike bliske načelima egzistencijalizma, apstraktog ekspresionizma i enformela ustupaju mesto filozofskim učenjima sa Dalekog istoka, spiritualnosti, ezoteriji, misticizmu, meditaciji, individualizmu. Likovna umetnost, a pre svega je ovde reč o slikarstvu, se vraća nekadašnjim idejama o čistom slikarstvu idealističkog karaktera, a teme koje obrađuje, problematizuje i vizuelizuje tiču se slikarstva kao takvog. Preistipitivanje svakodnevice, neprestana zebnja, potreba za pročišćenjem i dostizanjem unutrašnje harmonije, idejna su i pokretačka baza, kako mladih ljudi tako i umetnika 60-ih i 70-ih godina prošlog veka u Evropi i Americi. Godine koje su prethodile 1968. i one koje su usledile, označile su formiranje značajnog broja aktivističkih pokreta, kao i borbu za socijalnu pravdu, borbu protiv klasne nejednakosti, borbu za poboljšanje položaja mnogih marginalizovanih grupa, borbu za ravnopravnost žena (Drugi talas feminizma).

Mira Brtka, koja se umetnički i aktivistički formirala u Rimu, značajnom umetničkom toponimu Evrope, lako se i brzo uklapila u aktuelne tokove. Postala je ravnopravna i angažovana protagonistkinja rimske scene, baveći se i neslikarskim umetničkim

Taking into account the broader social context of the post-WWII period, one notices a significantly different intellectual, material, emotional, existential, and artistic climate. On the intellectual and creative level, especially in literature and visual arts, poetics closely associated with the principles of existentialism, abstract expressionism and informalism give way to Far East philosophical teachings, spirituality, esotericism, mysticism, meditation, and individualism. Fine arts, and primarily painting, harken back to earlier ideas of pure, idealistic art, while the topics it tackles, problematizes and visualizes pertain to the art of painting as such. Reexaminations of everyday life, a permanent anxiety, and the need to purify oneself and achieve inner harmony are the ideological base and incentive of both young people and artists of the 1960s and 1970s in Europe and America. The years immediately preceding and following 1968 were marked by the formation of a significant number of activist movements, as well as by struggles for social justice, women's equality, improvement of the position of many marginalized groups, and against class inequality.

Mira Brtka, who as an artist and an activist was formed in Rome (a prominent European artistic center), fitted into the current trends immediately and effortlessly. She became an equal and active protagonist of the Roman scene, while also taking part in non-painting artistic pursuits. In 1965 she represented Yugoslavia at the International Symposium of Artists, Critics and Art Historians in San Marino and Rimini, where she closely cooperated with Giulio Carlo Argan, one of the leading Italian mod-delovanjem. Već 1965. predstavljala je Jugoslaviju na Međunarodnom simpozijumu umetnika, kritičara i istoričara umetnosti u San Marinu i Riminiju, blisko sarađujući sa Arganom (Argan, Giulio Carlo) jednim od vodećih italijanskih modernističkih kritičara, koji je likovni izraz Mire Brtki prepoznao kao kulutno – umetnički obrazac blizak aktuelnom diskursu.

U vreme šezdesetosmaških procesa, u Rimu se javila potreba za konkretizovanjem akcija i definisanjem njihovog programskog karaktera, sa prevashodnim motivom uticaja na egzistencijalne, socijalne i društvene probleme, koji su bili usko povezani i sa globalno dominantnim kulturnim politikama. Cilj delovanja bio je jednostavan, pojačati uticaj umetnosti na sve sfere savremenog života. S toga, sarkastične i provokativne reakcije trebalo je institucionalizovati i uvesti u mainstream tokove. Godine 1973. italijanski umetnici i aktivisti Karmelo Romeo (Carmelo Romeo), Lučano Trina (Luciano Trina), Tullio Catalano (Tullio Catalano) i Mauricio Benveduti (Maurizio Benveduti), formirajuće Biro za preventivnu imaginaciju, međunarodni pokret umetničko – aktivističkog karaktera. Zahvaljujući svojim dostignućima, Mira Brtka 1975. godine postaje članica Biroa za preventivnu imaginaciju, čije su se aktivnosti temeljile na gibanjima, promociji i očuvanju angažovanih umetničkih poduhvata, činova i materijalnih dokaza u vidu artefakata, nastalih kao izraz transponovanja pojavnosti tadašnjeg sveta. Energično, kako se davaла и у другим oblastима, била је једна од активисткиња која је изказивала значајну спремност за активни ангажман. У години када приступа Birou, Mira Brtka већ живи и ствара на relaciji Jugoslavija – Italija, па је с тим у вези нjen ангажман био повремен, али континуиран (1976–2013). Тако је она, као ретко која уметница са нашег простора, имала прилику да се нађе у друштву најrelevantnijih уметника активističке provenijencije (група Art Language, Jozef Bojs (Joseph Beuys), Daniel Buren (Daniel Buren), Kristo (Christo), Braco Dimitrijević, Jozef Košut (Joseph Kossuth), Pjero Manconi (Piero Manzoni), Mario Merc (Mario Merz), Michelangelo Pistoletto (Michelangelo Pistoletto))... Поред свих значајних остварења, а било их је веома mnogo у каријери Mire Brtki, учеће у Birou se može smatrati ernist critics, who recognized Mira Brtka's artistic expression as a cultural and artistic pattern akin to the current discourse.

At the time of the upheaval of 1968, there appeared in Rome the need to concretize actions and define their program character, with the primary motive of exerting influence on existential, social and societal issues, which were closely related to the globally dominant cultural policies. The goal of the action was a simple one: to increase the influence of art on all spheres of modern life. Hence, sarcastic and provocative reactions had to be institutionalized and introduced into the mainstream. In 1973, Italian artists and activists Carmelo Romeo, Luciano Trina, Tullio Catalano and Maurizio Benveduti formed the Bureau for Preventive Imagination, an international movement of artistic and activist character. Thanks to her achievements, in 1975 Mira Brtka became a member of the Bureau, the activities of which were based on movements, promotion, and preservation of engaged artistic endeavors, acts and material evidence in the form of artifacts, created as an expression of transposing the manifestations of the world. Zestfully, the way she approached everything she undertook, she became an activists showing a significant readiness for active engagement. By the time when she joined the Bureau, Mira Brtka had already lived and worked while moving constantly between Yugoslavia and Italy, which is why her engagement with the Bureau was continual, not continuous (1976–2013). Like few other artists from our region, she had the opportunity to find herself in the company of the most relevant activism-inclined artists (the members of the Art&Language group, Joseph Beuys, Daniel Buren, Christo, Braco Dimitrijević, Joseph Kossuth, Piero Manzoni, Mario Merz, Michelangelo Pistoletto...). In addition to all the significant achievements, which were numerous in Mira Brtka's career, her involvement with the Bureau may be considered one of her highest achievements, especially considering the reputation that the Bureau of Preventive Imagination enjoyed in Italy.

The international character of the Bureau, which functioned as a network organization with headquarters in Rome, Nantes, Rio de Janeiro and New York, was also enhanced by the contributions from Mira Brtka, who with her associates established a branch of the Bureau in Stara Pazova. Bunker – the Art Balkanization Bureau – was formed in 1991, in the midst of the collapse of Yu-jednim od njenih najviših dostignuća, posebno ako se uzme u obzir ugled koji je Biro za preventivnu imaginaciju uživao u Italiji.

Internacionalnom karakteru Biroa, koji je funkcionišao kao mrežna organizacija sa sedištema u Rimu, Nantu, Rio de Žaneiru i Njujorku, doprinela je i Mira Brtka, koja sa saradnicima osniva ogrank Biroa u Staroj Pazovi. Bunker – biro za balkanizaciju umetnosti formiran je 1991. godine, u jeku jugoslovenskog sloma, pa samim tim upućuje na održivost ideje koja deluje nadnacionalno. Aktivnosti Bunkera bile su usmerene na kritike povodom aktualnih i svakodnevnih političkih, ekonomskih, ekoloških, socioloških i filozofske teme i probleme kroz artističke (re)akcije. Konkretno, angažman Mire Brtki je bio skoncentrisan na pronalaženje, prikupljanje i deponovanje različitih vrsta dokumenata koji svedoče o realnosti. U praktičnom smislu, to znači da je umetnica na najrazličitijim mestima tragala za "dokazima" života, bavila se ready made-om, izradom kolaža od recikliranih materijala, vraćala se tradiciji manjske grupe Slovaka, kojoj je i sama pripadala, pripremajući nacrte za vezove koje su kasnije izvodile slovačke vezilje. Značajno je naglasiti, da kada je reč o vezu, treba sagledati širi kontekst ovog umetničko - aktivističkog poduhvata Mire Brtki. Naime, radi se od svojevrsnom činu osnaživanja žena, u smislu njihove društvene verifikacije kao članica društva koje mu doprinose i otvaranju mogućnosti za njihovo ekonomsko osamostaljivanje kroz naknadu za obavljeni rad.

Poslednja akcija koju je Mira Brtka sa Biroom za preventivnu imaginaciju sprovedla bila je izložba Odande – dovde, priređena 2013. godine u Petrovaradinu u organizaciji Fondacije Brtka – Kresoja čija je prevashodna misija bila očuvanje i valorizacija umetničke prakse same Mire Brtki i članova njene naruže porodice (tragično nastradalih filmskih radnika Dragana Kresoje i Miloša Stefana Kresoje). Pored nje, na izložbi su učestvovali cenični italijanski umetnici aktivisti Karmelo Romelo i Lučano Trina, što ukazuje na Brtkino neprekidno participiranje na rimskoj umetničkoj sceni. Iako geografski izmešta, ona ostaje u toku sa aktualnostima. Tako, rimska i evropska kretanja ostaju i opstaju kao integralni deo geneze umetničkih, goslavija, due to which fact it points to the sustainability of an idea with a supranational reach. Bunker's activities were focused on criticism of the current and everyday political, economic, environmental, sociological and philosophical issues by way of artistic (re)actions. In particular, Mira Brtka's actions were focused on finding, collecting and depositing various types of documents describing reality. In a practical sense, that means that Brtka searched for "evidence" of life in various places, pursued ready-made art, created collages from recycled materials, and harked back to the tradition of the Slovak minority group to which she belonged by preparing blueprints for embroidery later used by Slovak embroiderers. It is important to emphasize that, speaking of embroidery, we need to consider the broader context of this artistic and activist endeavor of Mira Brtka. Namely, it is an act of female empowerment in terms of the reaffirmation of women's role in society to which they contribute, and of the opening of new opportunities for their economic independence through compensation for the work they perform.

The last action carried out by Mira Brtka with the Bureau for Preventive Imagination was the Odande–dovde (From There to Here) exhibition organized in 2013 in Petrovaradin by the Brtka–Kresoja Foundation, whose primary mission was to preserve and evaluate the artistic practices of Mira Brtka and her closest family (the tragically killed filmmakers Dragan Kresoja and Miloš Stefan Kresoja). In addition to her participation, esteemed Italestetskih, teorijskih i filozofskih stavova Mire Brtke. Upravo zahvaljujući višedecenijskoj aktivnosti pri Birou za preventivnu imaginaciju, u okviru podgrupe Arte ideologija koju su vodili pomenuti Romeo i Trina, umetnica će se naći na 54. Bijenalnu u Veneciji. Nastup performativnog dugometražnog karaktera kontinuiranog trajanja u kojem se izvođači smenjuju i koji se sastojao od brojnih aktivnosti (razgovori, performansi, projekcije video radova, intervencije), osmisnila je i postavila španska umetnica Dora Garsija (Dora García). U okviru proširenog performansa simbolički i aluzivno nazvanog Neadekvatni (L'inadeguato, Lo inadecuado), Mira Brtka je izložila Crveni kofer iz 1994. godine. Sadržaj Crvenog kofera, koji je bio deo postavke u okviru španskog paviljona, sastojao se od "deponovanih znakova" – dokumenata, artefakata, uradaka, pisanih svedočanstava o agilnim akcijama Biroa za preventivnu imaginaciju. Sam crveni metalni kofer, predmet je višeslojnog, umetničkog, političkog i angažovanog identiteta, o kojem je Brtke brinula više od 15 godina. On je simbol poništavanja granica – prolazi rigorozne kontrole na graničnim prelazima, putuje vozom, automobilom, gradskim prevozom, svedoči ratu uživo prolazeći kroz zone kojima se može samo pešica – i vapaja za slobodu, sankcijama okovane tadašnje države, posebno imajući u vidu da ga umetnica donosi u Staru Pazovi samo nekoliko dana nakon proglašenja embarga. Kritički nastrojen performans Neadekvatno otelotvoruje tezu Dore Garsije koja se bavi ukazivanjem na specifičan i nepovoljan položaj umetnika i umetnosti u zadatom (geo)političkom i društvenom diskursu. NATO letak koji je tokom bombardovanje 1999. godine pao u umetničino dvorište, kao i vez kritičkog sadržaja i provokativno – sugestivnog naslova Dobro došli u Evropu, adekvatan su izbor Mire Brtke za Neadekvatne. Izostanak razumevanja, politička i društveno – ekonomski nebriga za umetnost i umetnike, degradiraju njihov položaj gurajući ih na marginu marginе, što rezultira "dobrovoljnim" izgnanastvom i izmeštanjem iz centra. Iz svega navedenog, Mira Brtka je eklatantan primer drugosti i aktivne borbe koja nikada ne prestaje – žena umetnica sa Balkana, pripadnica nacionalne manjine, državljanka zatvorene zemlje koja deluje iz svog staropazovačkog Bunkera temeljno i uporno ukazujući na hronične probleme u

ian artists and activists Carmelo Romelo and Luciano Trina also took part in the exhibition, which indicates Brtka's continuous involvement with the Roman art scene. Although geographically displaced, she kept up with the current events. Thus, the Roman and European artistic movements persevered as an integral part of the genesis of Mira Brtka's artistic, aesthetic, theoretical, and philosophical views. It was precisely due to the decades of her activities at the Bureau for Preventive Imagination, within the Art Ideology subgroup led by the aforementioned Romeo and Trina, that Brtka would partake at the 54th Venice Biennale. The performance of continuous duration in which the performers took turns and which consisted of numerous activities (conversations, performances, video projections, interventions) was designed and staged by the Spanish artist Dora García. As part of an expanded performance symbolically and allusively called The Inadequate (L'inadeguato, Lo inadecuado), Mira Brtka exhibited her 1994 Red Suitcase. The content of the Red Suitcase, which was part of the exhibition within the Spanish pavilion, consisted of "deposited signs" – documents, artifacts, works, written testimonies about lively activities of the Bureau for Preventive Imagination. As for the red metal suitcase, it was the product of a multi-layered, artistic, political, and engaged identity, and Brtka had taken care of it for more than 15 years. It is a symbol of overcoming the borders – as it customarily passes rigorous controls at border crossings, travels by car, train and means of public transport, witnesses wars firsthand by passing through zones that can only be covered on foot – and of cries for freedom from a country under UN sanctions, especially bearing in mind that the artist brought the suitcase to Stara Pazova merely a few days after the announcement of the embargo. The critical performance of The Inadequate embodies Dora Garcia's thesis concerned with pointing out the specific and unfavorable position of artists and art in a given (geo)political and social discourse. The NATO leaflet that landed into the artist's yard during the 1999 bombing, as well as the piece of embroidery exhibiting a critical content and carrying a provocative and suggestive title Welcome to Europe, were suitable selections of Mira Brtka for her participation in The Inadequate. The lack of understanding and the political and socio-economic disregard for art and artists degrade the artists' position by pushing them to the very margins, which results in their "voluntary" exile and displacement from the center. Considering all of the above, it can be said that Mira Brtka is a glaring example of otherness and of a ceaseless, active struggle: a female artist from the Balkans, a member of a national minority, a citizen of an isolated country who worked from her Stara Pazova Bunker to point out the chronic societal problems thoroughly and persistently. Mira Brtka's twenty-year-long silence (1980–2000) and the activities she initiated from her own sequestered studio in Stara Pazova are a prime example of a consistent practice of dissident ideology postulates that was "disrupted" by an artistic growth that would last until 2014.

Za vreme boravka u Rimu ne prekida kontakte sa Beogradom. Radi kao prevodilac za izdavačku kuću „Mlado pokolenje“ (Rene Ređani [Renée Reggiani], Pustolovine čarobnog leta [Strane avventure di una meravigliosa estate]). Za Radio Beograd prevodi dramu Poručnik Kun Đulija Gatija (Gulio Gatti, Il teenente Kun). Za Politiku i NIN piše članke i radi intervjuve sa ličnostima iz sveta italijanske kulture: razgovara sa Đulijom Karlom (Giulio Carlo Arganom, gradonačelnikom Rima i predsednikom Međunarodnog udruženja likovnih kritičara, sa Pietrom Čermijem (Pietro Germi), sa kojim je saradjivala kao asistent režije na filmu Prokleta prevara (Un Maledetto Imbroglio), Folkom Kviličijem (Folco Quilici), istaknutim rediteljem dokumentarnih filmova, kao i sa rediteljem Damijanom Damianijem (Damiano Damiani). Učestvuje, takođe, na mnogim izložbama u zemlji, kao što su Oktobarski salon (1967, 1968, 1969. i 1970) i Trijenale jugo-slovenske umetnosti (1971)...

1967.

Profesor, slikar, Japanac Nobuya (Nobuya) Abe, koji je više puta boravio u Jugoslaviji pripremajući izložbu otisaka bogumilskih stećaka iz Bosne koja je održana u Tokiju, u Rimu osniva internacionalnu likovnu grupu pod nazivom ILLUMINATION. Članovi grupe su bili: Marša (Marcia) Hafif, Aldo Šmit (Schmid), Milena Čubraković, Paolo Pateli (Patelli) i Mira Brtka. Te godine grupa ILLUMINATION u Trentu otvara svoju prvu izložbu. Planovi za izložbe u ostalim italijanskim gradovima, zatim u Klagenfurtu i Japanu nisu ostvareni jer je nakon iznenadne Abeove smrti došlo do razlaza grupe (Brtka ubrzo odlazi u Sarajevo, a nešto ranije Marša Hafif se vratila u Ameriku).

1969.

Za „Neoplanta film“ režira dokumentarni film Partizanske baze. Snimatelj: Petar Latinović

1970.

Za Televiziju Beograd i emisiju Enciklopedija režira polučasovni film o dolasku Slovaka u ove krajeve. Snimatelj: Bata Grbić Dobija poziv iz Sarajeva da učestvuje u realizaciji filma Sutjeska, koji je u režiji Stipe Delića sniman od 1971. do 1973. godine 1966–1971.

During her stay in Rome she did not break ties with Belgrade. She worked as a translator for the publisher Mlado pokoljenje (Renée Reggiani, Adventures of a Magical Summer [Strane avventure di una meravigliosa estate]). For Radio Belgrade she translated the drama Lieutenant Kun, by Gulio Gatti (Il teenente Kun). She wrote articles and conducted interviews for Politika and NIN with figures from the world of Italian culture: conversations with Giulio Carlo Argan, the mayor of Rome and the President of the International Association of Art Critics, with Pietro Germi, with whom she collaborated as an assistant director on the film The Facts of Murder (Un Maledetto Imbroglio), Folco Quilici, a prominent director of documentary films, as well as with the director Damiano Damiani. She also participated in many exhibitions in the country, such as the October Salon (1967, 1968, 1969, and 1970) and the Yugoslav Art Triennial (1971)...

Japanese painter, professor Nobuya Abe, who had visited Yugoslavia several times in preparation for his exhibition of prints of Bogomil tombstones in Bosnia, which was held in Tokyo, established an international art group under the name ILLUMINATION, in Rome. Members of the group were: Marcia Hafif, Aldo Schmid, Milena Čubraković, Paolo Patelli, and Mira Brtka. That year, the group ILLUMINATION opened its first exhibition in Trento. Nove okolnosti i događaji potpuno menjaju Brtkine planove da se nakon završetka snimanja Sutjeske vradi u Rim. Osniva porodicu sa rediteljem Dragandom Kresojom. Te 1972. dobijaju sina Miloša. Nastanjuju se u porodičnoj kući u Staroj Pazovi, koristeći svaku priliku i mogućnost da borave u Rimu - Ostiji, gde Brtka ima svoj atelje sve do 2003.

Radi kostime za film Porci con le ali (Krilate svinje) Paola Pjetrandjelija (Pietraneli), uvrštenog u program 27. međunarodnog filmskog festivala u Berlinu. Reč je o kulnom filmu o pobuni (političkoj i seksualnoj) mladih tih godina, a kostim se bazirao na slovenskom folkloru, sa vezovima karakterističnim za Vojvodinu. Kasnije, najviše tokom osamdesetih, slične modele kreira za Centar za modu i za „Jugosport“ u Beogradu. To su bile unikatne haljine, prepoznatljive po kroju, vezovima i bojenju. Bile su poznate pod nazivom „Mirine haljine“. U Rimu je postojao naziv Camicione slavo, u prevodu: slovenska ili jugoslovenska košulja, što je zabeleženo u jednom broju modnog časopisa

Klagenfurt and Japan, were not realized since, due to Abe's sudden death, the group parted ways (Brtka soon left for Sarajevo, and somewhat earlier on, Marcia Hafif had returned to America).

Directed a documentary Partisan Bases (Partizanske baze) for Neoplanta film. Cinematographer: Petar Latinović

1970.

For Television Belgrade, and the program Encyclopedia, she directed a half-hour film on the arrival of the Slovaks in these regions. Cinematographer: Bata Grbić. She received an invitation from Sarajevo to participate in the production of the film Sutjeska, which was directed by Stipe Delić, and shot from 1971 till 1973

1971.

Solo exhibition in Novi Sad, at the Gallery of Contemporary Fine Art and the Gallery of Matica srpska, and in Belgrade, at the Salon of the Museum of Contemporary Art.

1980–1990.

Povremeno izlaže na grupnim izložbama u zemlji i inostranstvu. Neprekidno istražuje. Delovi njenih slika sada su i vezeni. Takozvano „trukovanje“ postaje deo crteža. Radi kolaže od raznih materijala (filmski plakati, ilustrovani časopisi, krpe, papir-mâché). Novi materijali vode je ka novim tehnikama. Postepeno izlazi iz dvodimenzionalnosti i slike postaju reljefne, da bi krajem devedesetih godina Brtka započela svoje bavljenje skulpturom

Za Televiziju Novi Sad realizuje film o Venecijanskom bijenalu. Snimatelj: Vasko Vesović

1990–2000.

Intenzivniji kontakti sa kolegama, poznanicima i prijateljima u Rimu rezultirali su zajedničkim izložbama u Beogradu, Novom Sadu i Zrenjaninu sa grupom italijanskih umetnika – članova grupe Biro za preventivnu imaginaciju (Bureau per l’immaginazione preventive), osnovane u Rimu 1974. Deo

ka. She started a family with director Dragan Kresoja. In 1972 they had a son Miloš. They settled in a family house in Stara Pazova, using every opportunity and possibility to stay in Rome - Ostia, where Brtka had her studio, until 2003

1977.

She created costumes for the movie Porci con le ali (Pigs Have Wings) by Paolo Pietrangeli, included in the program of the 27th Berlin International Film Festival. It was a cult film dealing with the rebellion (political and sexual) of youth, at the time, and the costumes were based on Slavic folklore, with embroidery characteristic of Vojvodina. Later on, during most of the 80s, she created similar models for the Center for Fashion (Centar za modu) and for Jugoeksport in Belgrade. These were unique one-off dresses, recognizable by their pattern, embroidery, and dyeing. They were known as "Mira's dresses." In Rome, there existed a term, Camicione slavo, in other words: a Slavic or Yugoslav shirt, which was mentioned in an issue of the Vogue fashion magazine (No. 369, from January 1981), where it mentions Slavic shirts, a reference to precisely the dresses created by Mira Brtka.

She occasionally exhibited in group exhibitions, at home and abroad. She continuously researched. Parts of her paintings now contained embroidery. The so-called trukovanje (tracing patterns on fabric) became a part of the drawing. She produced collages from various materials (film posters, illustrated magazines, cloths, papier-mâché). New materials lead her to new techniques. Gradually she emerged from two-dimensional images, the paintings became embossed, and in the late nineties, Brtka began her work in sculpture 1990.

Exhibited her first sculptures in the Gallery of the Association of Fine Artists of Vojvodina, in Novi Sad.

1995.

Made a film about the Venice Biennale for Television Novi Sad. Cinematographer: Vasko Vesović.

1990–2000.

Intensified contacts with colleagues, friends and acquaintances from Rome resulted in joint exhibitions in Belgrade, Novi Sad and Zrenjanin, with a group of Ital-

Tokom boravka i rada u okviru 24. internacionalnog simpozijuma skulpture: TERRA realizuje dokumentarni film o Kikindi i radu umetnika, učesnika u toj koloniji 2009.

Tokom boravka u Istanbulu radi realizacije samostalne izložbe u uglednoj galeriji GaleriArtist rađa se ideja o dugometražnom dokumentarnom filmu pod radnim nazivom DNK umetnika.

2011.

Učestvuje na 54. venecijanskom bijenalu u Španском paviljonu na poziv umetnice Dore Garsije (García), u okviru njenog projekta „proširenog performansa“ („extended performance“) pod nazivom Neadekvatno (L'inadeguato, Lo inadecuado, The inadequate). U Crnoj knjizi 54. bijenala u Veneciji (Il Libro Nero della 54. Biennale di Venezia) Euđenija Battisti (Eugenio Battisti) je izdvojila Španski paviljon, sa tadašnjim programom, kao najzanimljiviji 1996–2011.

Nakon tragičnog gubitka porodice 1996. vremenom sazревa ideja o stvaranju Fondacije Brtka-Kresoja u Novom Sadu. Potreba da se krene ian artists - members of the group Bureau for Preventive Imagination (Bureau per l'immaginazione preventiva), established in 1974, in Rome. Part of the works of the Italian group was temporarily stored in Stara Pazova, in Brtka's studio. Thus, one of the branches of the Bureau was established in Stara Pazova, entitled Bureau for the Balkanization of Art (Bureau per balcanizzazione dell'arte).

2005.

During her stay and work within the 24th International Sculpture Symposium: TERRA she made a documentary about Kikinda, and the work of artists, participants in that colony.

2009.

During her stay in Istanbul, for the staging of her solo exhibition at the prestigious gallery GaleriArtist, an idea originated for a feature-length documentary, with the working title Artist's DNA.

2012. (30. marta)

Izlagачki prostor Fondacije Brtka-Kresoja u Petrovaradinu otvoren je za javnost izložbom Mira Brtka i grupe Illumination. Obnavljanjem kontakata sa umetnicima iz Rima, Lučanom (Luciano) Trinom i Karmelom (Carmelo) Romeoom, članovima Biroa za preventivnu imaginaciju, uključuje se u projekat Umetnost i ideologija, sa ciljem kreiranja mogućnosti za aktivniju kulturnu saradnju između Italije i Srbije. Učestvuje u organizaciji sveobuhvatne izložbe njenog stvaralaštva, Mira Brtka: Nestabilne ravnoteže, kao i u izradi prateće publikacije.

2014

Umire 18. decembra u Beogradu.

2019

Njeno stvaralašvo, izborom iz opusa, prestavljeno je na izložbi Dijalog u Nacionalnoj galeriji u Beogradu. Tom prilikom je uodnošeno stvaralaštvo Mire Brtke, Milene Čubraković, Aleksandra Tomaševića i Lazara Vozarevića.

2020

U saradnji Fondacije MIRA BRTKA sa Centrom za kulturu Stara Pazova i Zavodom za kulturu vojvođanskih Slovaka, u Staroj Pazovi, u galeriji Mira Brtka i u okviru izložbenog prostora Zavoda za kulturu vojvođanskih Slovaka, organizovane su izložbe dva ciklusa Mire Brtke, radova sa vezom, i njima bliskih slika rađenih u slikarskoj tehnici akrilik na platnu

Black Book of the 54th Venice Biennale (Il Libro Nero della 54th Biennale di Venezia) Eugenia Battisti singled out the Spanish Pavilion, with its program, as the most interesting.

1996–2011.

Following the tragic loss of her family in 1996, the idea of creating a foundation Brtka-Kresoja in Novi Sad began to mature. The need to start from the beginning inspired her to archive all what Dragan Kresoja, as a director, and their son, Miloš Kresoja, as cinematographer had done, prepared, and set out to achieve. She began to collect, arrange, and classify their legacy, as well as all that she herself had previously done.

2012. (March 30th)

The exhibition space of the Foundation Brtka-Kresoja in Petrovaradin was opened to the public with the exhibition Mira Brtka and the Group Illumination. With the renewing of contacts with artists from Rome, Luciano Trina and Carmelo Romeo, members of the Bureau for Preventive Imagination, she began to participate in the project Art and Ideology, with the aim of creating an opportunity for a more active cultural cooperation between Italy and Serbia. She participates in the organization of a comprehensive exhibition of her work, Mira Brtka: Unstable Balances, as well as in the production of an accompanying publication.

Died on December 18 in Belgrade.

2019

Her work, selected from the opus, was presented at the exhibition Dialogue at the National Gallery in Belgrade. On that occasion, the works of Mira Brtka, Milena Čubraković, Aleksandar Tomašević and Lazar Vozarević were compared.

2020

In cooperation with the MIRA BRTKA Foundation with the Center for Culture of Stara Pazova and the Institute for Culture of Vojvodina Slovaks, in Stara Pazova, in the gallery of Mira Brtka and within the exhibition space of the Institute for Culture of Vojvodina Slovaks, exhibitions of two cycles of Mira Brtka, works with embroidery, and them close paintings made in the acrylic painting technique on canvas.
